LABOR MAN FINED FOR CONTEMPT

The first labor man to feel the effects of the recent blow delivered against organized labor in the labor opinions of the United States Supreme Court is Neil McDonald, business agent of the Lynn Building Trades Council, A. F. of L., who was to-day found guilty of contempt by Judge Richardson of the Superior Court and sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and ordered to pay in addition $50 costs.

Under the ruling of the court any union man having knowledge of an injunction issued can be found guilty of contempt even though he was not named individually when the injunction in the labor dispute is first issued.

Some months ago an injunction was issued against the building trades unions and their officers and members in Lynn at the instance of master builders because of a strike on the new Knights of Pythias Building in Lynn. Under the terms of the injunctions the union men were forbidden interfering with the men employed by the various firms.

Visited the Building.

Recently McDonald visited the building because of the employment of a non-union electrician. The firm then brought McDonald into court for contempt.

It appeared in the evidence of A. T. Santson that, while he was holding conversation with the defendant, Santson told him all about the injunction. Later Santson asked McDonald if McDonald did not know he was violating the injunction by interfering with the workmen. McDonald, it was said, replied: "I am here to look out for the interests of the union. I suppose you can put me in jail, but I can draw my salary in jail as well as President Gompers can."

George Fred Williams, counsel for McDonald, contended that since McDonald was not named as a defendant in the injunction proceedings he could not be held amenable to the terms of the injunction. The court ruled contrary.

Judge Richardson's Ruling.

Judge Richardson said, "The violation of these injunctions are the result more of ignorance than of malice, and the true remedy for this state of things is education, rather than imprisonment. I am inclined to be lenient in these cases for that reason."

Judge Richardson read from an opinion of the United States Supreme Court to the effect that "To render a person amenable to an injunction it is neither necessary that he should have been a party to the suit in which the injunction was issued, nor to have been actually served with a copy of it so long as he apeared to have had actual notice of it."

ROOSEVELT HOME AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—President Roosevelt and party arrived here at 2 o'clock this afternoon from Hodgenville, Ky.

Speaking particularly to railroad men who were in the crowd that pressed about the car at Harrisburg, President Roosevelt said that, while he believed that the United States would never be involved in trouble with a foreign nation, he hoped should such an emergency arise to have railroad men under him. The reason he gave was that they were a fine class of men, whose work was done under orders and who always obeyed.

The only stop between Altoona and Baltimore was at Harrisburg, but along the line intervening the train was cheered as it dashed through towns and hamlets.

The President brought home with him a jug of thirty-year-old whiskey, the gift of General John B. Castleman of Louisville, Ky., and a hickory cane prepared from timber out on the Lincoln farm and presented by the postmaster of Kentucky.

The engineer, who was at the throttle of the presidential train on the Louisville and Nashville road, bore the name Edwin Booth, a'though he is not related to the John Wilkes Booth family.

BERMUDA RATES CUT DOWN TO $20

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The inauguration of a steamship service between this port and Bermuda by the Bermuda-Atlantic line has precipitated a passenger rate war between that company and the Quebec Steamship Company, the old line, as a result of which the price for a first-class round-trip passage between Bermuda and New York and vice versa has been cut to $20.

12 FAMILIES FLEE DEATH IN FLAMES

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 13.—A dozen families had narrow escapes from burning to death, the branch postoffice, with much mail, and a dozen stores and apartments in the Mission section were destroyed as a result of a $60,000 fire just before daylight. For a time the entire district was in danger.

TOO MUCH WIRELESS FOR FLEET

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The naval wireless stations along the coast were unable to get into communication with the battleship fleet to-day, and it was said that the interference by numerous operators along the coast was largely to blame.

The only communication received was by the DeForest Wireless Company, which caught the following message:

"The position of the fleet at 8 o'clock a. m., on February 13, was: Latitude 24.50 north, longitude 68.41 west."

The government wireless station at Newport, R. I., had trouble to-day as a result of the atmosphere being surcharged with static electricity, and the same difficulty prevented the Fire Island station from getting any communication from the fleet.

NAVY OPERATORS BALKED BY THE BUSY AMATEURS

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Feb. 13.—Interference on the part of scores of amateur wireless operators along the New England coast prevented the wireless station at the Navy Yord here establishing any further communication with the homeward-bound battleship fleet.

The operator at the Navy Yard here worked during the entire night and day in an effort to comunicate with the fleet, but was able to obtain only a few disconnected words. The strong atmospheric electricity also added to the difficulty.

The Government wireless station at Newport also reported the same trouble.

COLDER, WARNS WEATHER MAN

Fair and colder weather is the promise of the weather department for Boston and the greater part of New England. That only holds good, however, for the next thirty-six hours.

That blizzard scheduled for Boston, when it arrived in the small hours of the morning, was so much the worse for wear that it didn't resemble anything like a blizzard.

There was some rain and a little snow and that was all the storm could accomplish for this vicinity.

Falling temperature is promised, along with fair skies, for to-morrow. To-day the mercury stood at 48 above zero. To-morrow morning it will likely fall as low as 22 to 28.

Greenville, Me., with 18 above, was the coldest place in New England to-day. Boston had the highest temperature. Edmonton, British Northwest, was the coldest. There the temperature was 36 below the zero mark. Jupiter, Fla., was the warmest, where the mercury rose to 68 above.

COMMITTEE FAVORS KNOX SALARY BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The bill reducing the salary of the Secretary of State so as to enable Senator Knox to assume that position in the Taft Cabinet was recommended to-day for passage by the House committee on election of the President, Vice-President and members of Congress. A similar measure has already passed the Senate.

WILL TOUR NEW ENGLAND.

Pop Anson's semi-professional team will tour New England this Spring, and it's a safe bet that the old gentleman will receive right royal welcomes in every city in which he appears. "Baby" Anson is still an heroic figure in baseball, down and out as he may be, and the loyal fans everywhere are sure to make him feel at home.

NEW CLEWS IN POISON MYSTERY

Three mysterious conferences in connection with the Kelleher poison mystery were held to-day by District Attorney John J. Higgins in his office in the East Cambridge courthouse. Shortly after noon the district attorney and State Detective Arthur E. Keating hastily left the courthouse, and, jumping into Mr. Higgins's automobile, were whirled rapidly away toward Somerville.

Every movement of the four State and Somerville detectives and inspectors was made most mysteriously.

District Attorney John J. Higgins appeared at his office as early as 9 o'clock. He strode through the door and brusquely refused to talk at all with newspaper men who approached him. His manner was unusual and plainly showed that he was greatly agitated about something.

Summonses at the door of the office were unheeded and the district attorney was seen to be striding up and down in his office in deep thought. Then he used the telephones and examined papers.

Detective Hurries to Office.

At 10 o'clock State Detective Keating came to the courthouse. He shunned the newspaper reporters and refused to state the purpose of his visit. He went into Mr. Higgins's inner office, where a long conference followed.

This conference appeared but to increase the agitation of the District Attorney, for he again began to use the telephone and talked with various persons over it for half an hour.

Then State Detective Charles E. Byrnes appeared. He hurried to the office of the District Attorney and to every question responded, "I have nothing to say." He went into the office, slamming the door behind him.

Then another conference followed between the District Attorney, Byrnes and Keating.

Mystery deepened when Inspectors Eugene L. Cater and Thomas A. Damery of the Somerville police came from the jail where they had been for almost two hours. They had been questioning Mrs. Mary Kelleher.

Behind Closed Doors.

The inspectors hurried to the District Attorney's office, where the third conference of the day took place behind closed doors.

At its conclusion shortly after noon the District Attorney and State Detective Keating hastily emerged and hurried to Mr. Higgins's auto, into which they jumped and hurried off at high speed toward Somerville.

That most important discoveries have been made in connection with the mysterious Kelleher poisoning mystery, the actions of the five prosecuting officials plainly showed.

They believe they are on the eve of clearing up the whole strange case.

Hunt Insurance Money.

State Detective Keating has been spending several days in Somerville working on the case under the special direction of Mr. Higgins. His efforts, it is known have been mainly directed toward finding what was done with the $4,000 insurance money which Mrs. Mary Kelleher received upon the deaths of the six members of her family.

From the fact that her stories have been so conflicting and the fact that she did not furnish the $1,200 bail required to give her her freedom pending the Grand Jury's considering the charge of arson hanging over her, it is believed that she turned over the insurance money to some person.

State Detective Keating has been trying to find out how this insurance money was disposed of.

Professor William F. Whitney, who has been examining the viscera taken from the bodies of Willie, Annie and Mary Kelleher, the latter a baby girl, has gone far enough in his research to justify the increased activity on the part of District Attorney Higgins and the State and Somerville officers.

That the officials investigating the case will be able to make a strong case before the grand jury sitting in East Cambridge next month there can be little doubt.

That the boarder who for so long was a member of the Kelleher home will be able to help them and throw a flood of light on the case is known. This person will be at hand when the time arrives for this part of the story to be told.

The investigation is narrowing down and the next moves made by District Attorney Higgins and the officers who are working under his direction in the case will undoubtedly be sensational and final.

MAYOR TO URGE BILLS MONDAY

Mayor Hibbard to-day announced that he would personally appear before the committee on metropolitan affairs at the States House on Monday to advocate his bills, calling for changes in several of the city departments.

The Mayor also stated that, despite all assertions to the contrary, ex-Governor John L. Bates and Former District-Attorney Guy A. Ham will appear before the committee on Monday to favor the new city charter.

GIRL FIGHTS FOOTPAD AND SAVES WAGES

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Feb. 13.—By vigorous resistance, Miss Elizabeth McGarty, an employe of the E. Jenckes Manufacturing Company, foiled a footpad who attempted to rob her of her week's pay early to-day near Pine street railroad crossing.

Miss McGarty is one of the night force of the mill, which is paid off early Saturday mornings. At 6:30 a. m. she started home. As a precaution against holdup men and on account of the scare prevailing since the Phillipsdale robbery, Miss McGarty did not put her pay envelope and its ten dollars in wages in her hand bag, but thrust it in one of her gloves between the glove and her palm.

Near the railroad crossing a man sprang at her from behind a shanty and said: "Give me your money, and grasping her by the throat, wrenched at her handbag.

Miss McGarty screamed and fought the man till she was exhausted. He got the handbag, but was delayed so long in obtaining it that he only had time to glance inside it when another mill employe, a man, was seen coming around the next corner. The thief dropped the bag and fled, leaving Miss McGarty none the worse off except for the nervous shock and the shaking she had received.

The police have Miss McGarty's description of the man and are looking for him.

HOUSE FIGHT OVER KNOX RESOLUTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The Knox enabling resolution of the Senate popped up in the House to-day and created a turmoil.

Representative Henry, Democrat, Texas, demanded to know whether the Senate resolution had been referred to committee. He was informed by the Speaker that it was on the table, but would be referred to the committee on election of President, Vice-President and Representatives.

Henry then demanded that the resolution be referred to the Judiciary Committee.

A long parliamentary discussion then ensued.

The Speaker finally ruled a motion of the Texan that the bill be referred to the Judiciary Committee out of order, and made reference himself to the committee on election of President, Vice-President and Representatives.

He then admitted that this reference could be corrected if the House saw fit. However, the minority members gave up the attempt.

The Judiciary Committee of the House is known to be unfriendly to all attempts to repeal the provisions of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill so as to permit Senator Knox to serve as Secretary of State, believing them unconstitutional, inasmuch as the salary of that office was raised during Knox's service in the Senate.

Mr. Gillespie of Texas moved that the Gaines bill to remove Knox's disability be referred to the House Committee on Judiciary for an opinion on the question of its constitutionality, but this was voted down.

The bill will be called up in the House Monday and an effort made to pass it under suspension of the rules.

BUTLER AMES JOINS NEW AERO COMPANY

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 13.—First of its kind in the world, the Aeronautical Development Company, limited, was organized here to-day. The new company will handle aeroplanes, aeroplane parts and fixtures. Those interested believe that the aeroplane business is now on the point of reaching to a commercial stage. It is possible that later an aeroplane line to carry passengers between this city and New York will be established. An improved aeroplane has been built by the company and will shortly be on exhibition in this city. Among those interested in this latest venture in aeronautics are said to be Representative Butler Ames, F. L. Rice, builder of the Ludlow aeroplane; Professor Alexander Graham Bell and Emile Berliner, telephone magnate.

WOMAN TELLS HOW SHE TRAPPED MAN IN SHOP AT PISTOL POINT

As Jeremiah Washington, colored, was led into the cage in the municipal courtroom to-day to plead to the charge of attempting to break into the tailor shop of Miss Margaret Maloney at No. 9 City Hall avenue, the proprietor told with glee how, after two weeks of nightly vigil, she had discovered the intruder, shot at him through the window, and caused his capture by the police.

Washington, who pleaded not guilty to the charges made against him by Miss Maloney, was held in $1,200 bail for the Grand Jury by Judge Ely. He went to jail in default.

There were two charges of breaking and entering and larceny from Miss Maloney's tailor shop, once on October 12, and again on November 8. He was charged with attempting to break and enter last night. It is alleged that he stole $100 worth of clothing on October 12 and $185 worth on November 8. He waived examination.

There was a reason for Miss Maloney's midnight vigilance, for half a dozen times has her shop been broken into within a year, right under the noses of the police of Station 2, and much valuable property has been stolen.

To make it all the sadder for Captain Gaskin of the Court Square Station, in the last raid there was taken a pair of his own trousers which he had left to be pressed.

So Miss Maloney bought a gun and electric searchlight and slept every night on a couch in the store. Here is her own statement of her midnight encounter:

By Miss Margaret Maloney.

"I was in deadly earnest, and determined to catch the burglar who has broken into my store half a dozen times in the past year, the last break having been in October. At that time several hundred dollars' worth of clothing was stolen. This was injuring my business, as people would naturally be afraid to leave their clothes with me to repair. So about two weeks ago I bought a 32-calibre revolver, and have slept every night in the store since.

"Before that I had employed a night watchman, but this cost too much. I made up my mind I would get the robber myself, for I felt confident that the breaks were all committed by the same man, and that he would come again.

"In addition to buying the gun I also got an electric searchlight. That and the gun I left on the sill of the side window, close to the couch where I slept.

Opened Fire on Intruder.

"Last night I was on guard as usual, and at about 12 o'clock the engineer of the building went home. Shortly afterward a man appeared in the doorway. I heard his steps outside and looked out. He started down the stairs.

"At first I thought it might be the engineer coming back, but when he started to climb over the iron gate I knew I had the thief.

"He scaled the gate and jumped down into the doorway. I gripped my gun, threw on the light, pulled aside the curtain and flashed the light in the man's face. Even then I couldn't tell whether he was white or colored.

"I was afraid he had a gun, so I took no chances and fired first, right through the window. I missed him, the bullet going through the window sash and embedding itself in the ceiling of the door.

Thought Man Dead.

"He gave one awful groan and dropped in the doorway, where he lay for fully five minutes. I watched him closely, and if he had moved I should have sent some more lead after him. But I feared at the time that I had killed him.

"I climbed up on a desk and fired another shot out through a smaller window up into City Hall avenue and attracted the attention of the police. Dr. Dunn, the station physician, and the reserves came running down and arrested the man.

"I was greatly relieved to find that I had not shot him, for I think it's an awful thing to kill anyone.

Miss Margaret Maloney, who effected intruder's capture by use of pistol.

"As soon as I could I went into the station house and identified him. He admitted that he had been in my place several times before. He always got in in the same way, by climbing up on the sill and forcing the transom. He was thoroughly acquainted with the building.

Pawned Stolen Clothing.

"When the police searched the prisoner they found pawn tickets in his pockets showing that he had pawned some of the clothing which had been stolen from my place.

"I may never be able to recover some of the property, and I have lost a good deal. It had become such a serious matter that I had even hired private detectives, but I had to get him myself."

Not only is the capture highly pleasing to the authorities, but don't they see a prospect of restoring the Cap's trousers to their owner? Washington's room will be searched to-day in quest of loot. He said he lived at No. 27 Newcomb street, and that he is twenty-seven years old.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
By Julia Ward Howe

THROUGH the dim pageant of the years
A wondrous tracery appears—
A cabin of the Western wild
Shelters in sleep a new-born child.

NOR Nurse, nor parent dear can know
The way those infant feet must go
And yet a nation's help and hope
Are sealed within that horoscope.

BEYOND is toil for daily bread,
And thought, to noble issues led,
And courage, arming for the morn
For whose behest this man was born.

A MAN of homely, rustic ways,
Yet he achieves the forum's praise,
And soon earth's highest meed has won—
The seat and sway of Washington.

NO throne of honors and delights—
Distrustful days and sleepless nights—
To struggle, suffer and aspire,
Like Israel, led by cloud and fire.

A TREACHEROUS shot, a sob of rest,
A martyr's palm upon his breast,
A welcome from the glorious seat
Where blameless souls of heroes meet;

AND, thrilling through unmeasured days,
A song of gratitude and praise;
A cry that all the earth shall heed,
To God, who gave him for our need.

Written by Mrs. Howe in her ninetieth year and read by her at the Lincoln memorial meeting in Symphony Hall last night.

CANOPIC SAILS FOR THE AZORES

Carrying many first-class passengers, but not so many as usual in the steerage, the White Star line steamship Canopic sailed to-day for the Azores, Naples and Genoa.

The foreigners who usually fill the third-class cabin of the vessel are remaining in this country, and this is pointed out as an indication that the period of depression is passed and that there is plenty of work here.

In the saloon there were 120 passengers. Among them were Dr. and Mrs. James A. Peeples of Philadelphia and Mr. and Mrs. Alden E. Viles, who were passengers on the Republic when she was rammed by the steamer Florida. They resume their interrupted tour after replenishing their lost wardrobes.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy V. Baldwin, Miss Emita Culbertson, Miss Emma B. Culbertson, Mrs. Eliza E. Gaylord, Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Melcher and Miss Dorothy Melcher and Miss Cora Westcott of Boston, Professor Edward A. Wicher and Mrs. Wicher of San Francisco were on board.

CHEER TAFT ON HIS WAY HOME

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13.—Declaring that he has had a red-hot time and promising to come back for the waterways convention in November or October, President-elect Taft left New Orleans for Cincinnati this morning with Mrs. Taft and party, escorted by Governor Noel of Mississippi. He will talk from his car at Meridian, Miss., and Hattiesburg, Miss.

"When I came here," said the president-elect, "Mayor Behrman told me that the people of New Orleans were going to give me a good time. I want to say to you that I had more than that. I have had a red-hot old time."

The president-elect shook hands with the committee then and entered his train. Mr. Taft shook hands with the bell boys, porters and the police as he left the hotel, and, taking off his hat, shouted "Good-by" to the crowd.

MOB LYNCHES FLORIDA NEGRO

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 13.—Jack Wade, colored, was lynched to-day at Lakeland, thirty miles from here, for an attack upon Miss Irma Newell of Lakeland.

Wade was arrested at Trilby. The Sheriff attempted to get him into the jail at Bartow without going through Lakeland, but a mob from the latter place met the train at a way station, seized Wade and took him to the scene of his crime. He was identified by Miss Newell, who asked the mob not to lynch the negro.

Wade was tied to a tree, however, and his body riddled with bullets.

WARRANT OUT FOR ARREST OF MAXIM GORKY

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 13.—A warrant for the arrest of Novelist Maxim Gorky was issued by the police to-day. The charge against him is supposedly political, though no information was given out.

In the warrant Gorky is described as a "house painter of Nijni Novgorod."

Gorky is at present in Italy and his friends here say that it is probable that he will take up permanent residence in Florence. If the Czar's police could land him in Siberia they would please the government by doing so.

He has been active in aiding the revolutionists of his native land and it is feared that the Russian spies have secured some strong evidence against him.

Gorky had a rather unpleasant experience when he visited this country in the early Spring of 1906. He was accompanied by Mme. Adreleva and in New York he was driven from several hotels. This is how Gorky looked upon the woman whom he called his wife:

"This woman is my wife. She is my wife none the less because certain words have not been spoken and certain ceremonies observed. She has been my wife for four years; I proclaim her as such and honor her as such; why then should others question that which concerns me alone."

Gorky visited Boston and made a speech the latter part of May. He was accompanied by Dr. Antoinette Konikow and before he left Boston he visited Harvard College and was greeted warmly by President Eliot.

While Gorky was at Harvard he met A. Lawrence Lowell, the incoming president of the college, and other prominent professors. The visitor had tea at the home of Professor William James, the brother of the novelist.

BALLOON HAS NEW RECORD

Boston aeronauts are to-day discussing the wonderful flight of the balloon Pommern, which, carrying six passengers, left North Adams at noon yesterday and landed in Standish, close to Sebago Lake, in Maine, at 6:30 last night, breaking all previous flight records in New England. The distance covered was 175 miles.

The Pommern won the international race from St. Louis in 1907, when it carried Oscar Erbsloeh of Germany and H. H. Clayton of Boston close to the Atlantic Coast in New Jersey.

In the car, when the big balloon made the first ascension of the year were: Dr. Julian P. Thomas of New York, owner; Dr. Thomas's ten-year-old son, Odin; Wilbur R. Kimball, Dr. William Greene, Henry Melzner and A. Leo Stevens, all of New York. Dr. Thomas was pilot.

When the balloon left North Adams it took a northeasterly course at the start passing over Brattleboro, Vt., Keene, Concord and at Rochester, N. H., it passed so close to the earth that the name on the gas bag could be read. Dr. Thomas said the highest elevation reached was 8,200 feet. At 8,000 feet the thermometer registered a temperature of three degrees above zero.

The Pommern's record shatters that of William Van Sleet and Dr. C. W. Stowell made last year, who went from Pittsfield to Plymouth, a distance of 135 miles. The balloon party is expected to reach Boston to-day.

KILLS RIVAL; SHOOTS THREE

BRIDGETON, N. J., Feb. 13.—One man was murdered and a woman and her two sons were wounded by Richard Donegan, a jealous admirer of the woman, at the little oyster town of Bivalve on Maurice River early to-day.

Donegan, who once was an inmate of the Morristown, Pa., insane asylum, has been living in or near Bivalve for about a year and has been attentive to Mrs. Madge Kinkle, who is separated from her husband. He visited the Kinkle house early to-day but was refused admittance. He attempted to get in through a window and discovered that Joseph Summerfield, who had supplanted him in the affections of Mrs. Kinkle, was in the house.

Donegan pulled a revolver and shot Summerfield, killing him instantly. He then opened fire on the woman and her sons.

BLAMES PUBLIC FOR IMMORAL PLAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 13.—David Belasco, accompanied by Acton Davies, the critic, visiting here, said: "Immoral plays are not in favor with actors, and the public taste is to blame for their existence. Women are worse than men, as far as taste for these plays goes, and New York is more lax than San Francisco, morally."

MRS. ATHERTON, WHO FIGURES IN FAMOUS SUIT

BEAUTY QUAILS AT ATTORNEY'S BITTER ATTACK

EDINBURGH, Feb. 13.—The cross suits for divorce of Mr. and Mrs. John Alexander Stirling were resumed to-day. Counsel for both parties addressed the court and Mrs. Atherton endured what must have been one of the most uncomfortable days of her life.

Solicitor-General Alexander Ure took Lord Advocate Shaw's place and he treated Mrs. Atherton to a tongue lashing that made her wince visibly.

"Her record is not unimpeachable," he declared, "her talent for intrigue is great, her personal attractions are obvious and her virtue is easy."

The Solicitor-General pictured her as a temptress successfully leading the impressionable husband, Stirling, astray.

"Callous Epistle."

When Clyde mentioned Mrs. Stirling's letters to her husband regarding money as "callous epistles," Lord Guthrie commented:

"This shows the sordid element in their lives."

Again when Clyde referred to one of the letters from Lord Northland to Mrs. Stirling inscribed to "Darling," Lord Guthrie said:

"One hundred and fifty years ago this would have meant a duel."

"But now our only means of redress is a lawsuit," Clyde answered.

In concluding his address Clyde said that the conduct of Mrs. Stirling and Northland since the former left her husband could be interpreted only as a mutual acknowledgment. To this Lord Guthrie replied:

Unable to Live Without Lord.

"It is true that Mrs. Stirling's disposition has been proved to be most unstable."

Clyde contended that Stirling had never been first in his wife's affections; that Mrs. Stirling's acquaintance with Northland began before her marriage to Stirling, when she was still a chorus girl, and from a Bohemian friendship ripened into an overpowering passion until finally she found herself unable to live without Northland.

"While Northland denied on the stand that he loved Mrs. Stirling," Clyde said, "his letters to her clearly show that he did. The correspondence was such as only lovers would engage in. Mrs. Stirling's letter to Northland, following her trouble with her husband, was the cry of a person in pain.

Love Denied Husband.

"It came straight from the heart and proved conclusively that she passionately loved Northland and had been giving to him all the love that she had denied her husband.

"This letter is more than a declaration of love. It involves the admission of improprieties with Northland. Mrs. Stirling found on her visit to America that she probably loved Northland more than she even suspected. She found that she couldn't live without him and this accounts for her cabling to him the date of her return.

"The moment she returns she flees to Northland. She was with him constantly after her arrival. In fact, she abandoned herself to him. Is this the way of a heartbroken and innocent wife?

"I do not say that Mrs. Stirling has not suffered, but her sufferings were due to the fact that Stirling—the husband whom she did not love—stood in the way of her marriage to Northland."

The gossip of the court is that the judge will grant a divorce to both parties, but forbid them to marry, which would be a decidedly cruel example of Scotch justice.

Strauss's "Elektra" Proving a Failure.

BERLIN—Strauss's "Elektra" begins to be a failure, although in the repertoires of both the Dresden and the Frankfort Opera houses. On "Elektra" nights the houses are half empty.

The Empress is believed to be as strongly opposed to "Elektra" as to "Salome," because both are what she calls perverse subjects produced in revolting fashion.

Another difficulty about "Elektra" is that few artists are capable of singing the two leading parts.

Frau Schrill, the leading soprano of Vienna, declined altogether to sing "Elektra," having, as she said, no wish to spend a month in the hospital.

Fraulein Jovaovics when handed the part of Clytemnestra studied it for some time, and then handed it back to Herr Strauss, remarking that she hoped to sing next year and so could not undertake this part.

DENVER MAIL CAR HELD UP AND LOOTED

DENVER, Col., Feb. 13.—Two masked bandits early to-day held up the Denver and Rio Grande train No. 4 at Military Junction, between Fort Logan and Denver.

They looted the mail car and escaped with the registered mail. Deputies left here for the scene. It is not known how much the robbers got.

Word was sent to Fort Logan and an automobile loaded with heavily armed police was started for the scene of the robbery.

The train was due in Denver at 10:45 last night, but was running four hours late. There is a steep grade just after leaving the junction, and as the engine reached the crest of the hill two men sprang into the glare of the headlight. One ran into the side of the cab when the engine was brought to a stop. Climbing the steps, he covered the engineer and fireman with a revolver.

The engineer and fireman were compelled to accompany the bandit to where his accomplice was waiting at the side of the mail car. The two then walked the entire length of the train firing their revolvers to intimidate the passengers. Next the fireman was forced to enter the mail car and point out the registered mail, which one of the desperados rifled, while his companion stood guard over passengers and train crew with his ready revolvers.

After securing their plunder, the bandits drove passengers and crew back into the cars and ordered the engineer to proceed to Denver at full speed. They fired in all fifty shots. The robbers when last seen were proceeding in the direction of Ft. Logan.

NEGRO LEADER LAUDS LINCOLN

Booker T. Washington, the noted negro educator, arrived in this city early to-day from New York. He went directly to the Parker House, where many of his Boston friends called upon him and talked about his work for the uplifting of his race.

He was entertained at luncheon this afternoon by Bernard J. Rothwell, president of the Chamber of Commerce; James J. Storrow, president of the Boston School Board; Mary Boyle O'Reilly and other prominent Bostonians. This evening Mr. Washington addresses the Boston City Club at its rooms on Beacon street upon "Abraham Lincoln."

Following is a tribute to Lincoln from Mr. Washington:

"As an individual, grateful as I am for freedom, my gratitude is still greater for freedom of soul. The signing of the Emancipation Proclamation was a great event, and yet it was but the symbol of another still greater and more momentous. We, who celebrate the 100th anniversary of his birth, should not forget that the same pen that gave freedom to four millions of African slaves, at the same time struck the shackles from the souls of twenty-seven millions of Americans of another color."

BRILLIANT SOCIETY DANCE AT SOMERSET TRIUMPH OF SEASON

Miss Dorothy Forbes, one of the belles at the brilliant society ball at the Somerset. Miss Forbes yesterday paid a fine of $5 for auto speeding, and she was joked about the affair by her many friends and acquaintances.

Surpassing in the brilliancy of the gowns worn and in the wondrous gems displayed any of the social events of the Winter, last night's second and last assembly at the Somerset was to-day pronounced a triumphant finale to the pre-Lenten balls.

Conspicuous among those present was Miss Dorothy Forbes, the dashing young society leader, equestrienne and autoist. She retorted wittily to the jibes of her friends because of her being fined $5 in court for driving her car through the park at Dedham with chains on the tires.

Not only was the "400" of Greater Boston out in force, but distinguished out-of-town guests were there.

IRELAND FOR CARDINALATE

ROME, Feb. 13.—The Pope clearly indicated to-day in a farewell audience to Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul that the archbishop is being seriously considered for elevation to the cardinalate.

The Pope raised his hand, adorned with the papal ring, for the archbishop to kiss. "I wish Your Eminence a happy journey," the Pope said, as the archbishop kissed the ring.

The archbishop looked surprised, whereupon the Pope smilingly corrected himself. "Excuse me," he said, "I should have said Your Grace," and then smiling still more significantly, the Pope concluded, "but perhaps I was only anticipating events after all."

Archbishop Ireland leaves Rome to-morrow.

Twenty-six persons reached the shore, and the remainder are thought to have drowned. The captain was the last person to leave the vessel. He got on an upturned boat and was saved.

HEIR TO DUKE'S FORTUNE DIES UNDER KNIFE

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Edward George Hugh Grosvenor, the five-year-old son of the Duke of Westminster, the second richest peer in England, died to-day following an operation for appendicitis.

The boy was born on December 17, 1904. Had he lived until he was twenty-one he would have brought to the Westminster coffers an income of $5,000,000, by the lapse of leases on property in Belgravia, the most fashionable centre of London. His father, the second Duke, succeeded to personal property valued at $3,000,000, and realty worth $6,000,000. He owns about 600 acres in the finest section of the metropolis, and 60,000 acres in the country.

The Duchess, mother of the little nobleman who died to-day, was Miss Shelagh West, sister of Cornwallis West, who married Miss Jerome of New York. She is deemed one of the famous beauties of London. She became engaged to the Duke when they were mere children and their married life has been a happy one.

DUBLIN, Feb. 13.—At a meeting of Irish landowners a resolution was carried unanimously deploring the lawlessness prevalent in Ireland consequent upon the alleged fact that the government, for political reasons, refused to put the law into effect. 'PATSY' DE FOREST, CHORUS GIRL, WED TO LAW STUDENT

CHORUS GIRL BRIDE OF RICH LAW STUDENT

Miss "Patsy" De Forest, one of the prettiest chorus girls of "The Time, the Place and the Girl" company, it was learned to-day, was quietly married on Thursday of this week at Wellesley to Harold Houston, a wealthy New York law student who was visiting friends in Wellesley.

The play is now running at the Globe Theatre. The bride is to remain with the company the rest of the season.

Miss Leona Stephens, the "girl" of the company, gave the bride away. The bride-to-be, accompanied by Miss Stephens, started from their hotel early in the morning and reached Wellesley about noon, and after the ceremony the couple rode to Boston in an auto and had dinner at the Touraine.

Thursday evening the groom and best man occupied one of the stage boxes at the Globe, but no one in the audience, or in the company for that matter, outside those directly interested, knew of the wedding.

The fact leaked out last evening, and the little girl was given a tremendous greeting by her companions in the show.

The bride is one of the "ponies." Being an orphan, Miss Stephens took an immense interest in her, and that is why she insisted in being a "mother" to her on her wedding day.

The newly-made bride will finally settle in New York with her husband after spending a few months at the Summer home of the Houstons at Lakewood, N. J.

JAILS ROGERS IN MAIL FRAUD

Ignoring the pleas for mercy advanced by the prisoner himself, by former Assistant District Attorney John H. Casey and a stylishly dressed young woman who hid her identity, Judge Dodge to-day in the United States District Court sentenced George M. Rogers of New York to a year's imprisonment in the House of Correction for using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Rogers wept bitterly as sentence was pronounced. His scheme was to offer silverware in connection with a puzzle. He received $1.35 from those who answered his letters and promised high grade silverware in return. Only the cheapest of goods, however, were mailed to customers by Rogers. A year ago he paid a fine of $300 on one of two indictments, sentence being suspended upon the second on his promise to abandon his scheme.

Shafer. Morgan had pleaded guilty to charges of forgery and embezzlement. When questioned about $34,000 Morgan drew at one time from the bank he said he had been robbed of $20,000 of that sum near the Haymarket Dance Hall, New York city, one night last August, and had not reported the loss to the police because it would have been an acknowledgement of his guilt.

SUPREME INDUSTRIAL COURT TO FIX PRICES, IS CARNEGIE'S IDEA

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—"The industrial world is now undergoing the most momentous change known in its history," declares Andrew Carnegie in an interview. "It is even more far-reaching than was the change from the individual domestic manufacturer, manufacturing at home, to the factory system and the huge establishments of to-day.

"In the production of nearly all articles of general consumption we no longer have the benefit of that competition which formerly regulated prices and upon which all nations have hitherto depended to insure reasonable prices for the consumer. Some of our most important industries to-day are only nominally competitive, and in reality are monopolies so far as an understanding exists as to prices that will prevail.

Larger Question Than Tariff.

"These virtual monopolies must be controlled in some way or another. A supreme industrial court will have to be created, and eventually will have to pass upon prices—disguise this as we may. This is even a larger question than the tariff, but our trouble with revisions of the tariff will be greatly overcome by a body of experts, keeping themselves fully informed of all matters pertaining to the question.

"The new industrial court may make mistakes, as our Interstate Commerce Commission may, but both will gradually create traditions and make decisions which will be guides for the future. It would be well for our captains of industry generally to attend the forthcoming convention and get a true understanding of the problems involved, that they may be prepared to pass upon the suggested remedies."

Permanent Commission of Experts.

Mr. Carnegie went on to discuss the tariff. He declared Congress incapable of fixing a just tariff schedule, and said that a permanent bi-partisan commission of experts was the only solution of the ever-troublesome tariff problem.

He urged that all manufacturers of the country attend the National Tariff Commission convention, which meets at Indianapolis next Tuesday. He also asserted that the average Congressman, as a rule, is not equipped by training or knowledge to deal fairly and understandingly with such an abstruse proposition as tariff.

"Congress Uninformed."

Of the tariff he said: "The difficulty with tariff commissions or regulators composed of members of Congress is that these gentlemen are necessarily uninformed upon the true conditions of the varied industries. Evidence given by interested parties cannot be depended upon as disinterested. Interested persons form distorted views, colored as these are by their own interests. This is inevitable. Such is human nature. They may not wish to deceive. They are themselves deceived.

"Evidence Untrustworthy."

"Congressmen hearing evidence on the technical points of an industry are not familiar with the language. They cannot understand the bearing of the testimony given.

"Another misfortune is that Congressional tariff committees get no trustworthy evidence upon conditions in other countries, and before men can legislate wisely they must be informed upon the relative conditions of both domestic and foreign manufacturers.

"There should be a permanent staff of able, disinterested men, charged with studying conditions in all manufacturing countries."

Steel Trust is Omnipotent.

Mr. Carnegie has pointed out that the United States Steel Corporation—of which the Carnegie Steel Company was the foundation—has now got so big by natural growth, by buying out competitors, by perfection of machinery and by concentration of great executive ability of management, that it is now practically omnipotent in fixing prices, from the tin plate in the workingman's dinner pail or the wire nail used by the carpenter to the gigantic steel girders in the skyscraper.

"And," adds Mr. Carnegie, "if we are going to authorize combinations as big as that, we have got to have a court to fix prices to consumers."

The same remarks apply to the beef combination, which absolutely controls the prices of beef, mutton and pork in good times and bad times, putting their product quite beyond ordinary competition.

$30,000,000 FINE; PAY $1 AND GO FREE

AUGUSTA, Ga., Feb. 13.—"I'll go Judge Landis one better, and make the fine $30,000,000," said Recorder Picquet in imposing sentence upon seven negroes convicted of violating the health ordinances in allowing garbage to accumulate on their premises. The fine was imposed upon each of the defendants.

Appalled at the magnitude of the fine, the negroes sank to the bench with groans and staring eyes. When the laughter which the Court's decision caused had subsided, Recorder Picquet suspended sentence, upon condition that each of the defendants deposit $1 with the clerk. The ordinance under which the sentence was imposed provides that the Court "may impose any fine it sees fit."

BOY RINGS FALSE ALARM.

Smoke from a burning chicken in the kitchen at No. 3 Seneca street caused a false alarm of fire to be sent in from the box at Albany and Way streets about 10:30 to-day. A small boy saw the smoke coming from the window and rushed to the box and sent in the alarm.

TRUST LOSES LAST FIGHT ON 80-CENT GAS

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court to-day issued the decree which carries out the mandate of the United States Supreme Court in the eighty-cent gas litigation.

The decree declares dismissed without prejudice the case of the Consolidated Gas Company against District Attorney Jerome, Attorney General Jackson, the public service commission, the commission of gas and electricity and the city of New York. It was in this case that the gas trust got a decision from Judge Hough, which declared the eighty-cent law unconstitutional because it was confiscatory. When the appeal was made in behalf of the people to the Supreme Court Justice Hough was reversed and the eighty-cent law ordered put in effect.

Justice Lacombe charges the cost of the litigation to the Gas Trust.

The Slattery Company says about $1,200 worth of goods are missing.

DREAM OF WEALTH MAKES GIRL STEAL

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—That the dream of a crippled girl, who wanted to be the bride of a handsome youth and live in a beautiful palace, like the romances of the fairy tales, is responsible for the larceny of more than $50,000, was declared to-day, when six relatives of Pasquale Schiavone, a banker, were arrested on a charge of conspiracy to receive stolen property. Pasquale's nineteen-year-old daughter Angelina, finally broke down and recited a story of how she had been told when she was twenty-two years old she should be married to her cousin Michael, and the passion to be a wealthy woman had driven her to steal.

DR. CHAPMAN DEVOTES DAY TO EDUCATION

For the first time since the opening of the great simultaneous revival the revivalists held Saturday meetings to-day. It is "education day" and to reach the hundreds of teachers and students in the greater city, Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, leader of the revival gave up his day of rest to hold two meetings. This afternoon in People's Temple he led special services for teachers and university students. Hundreds attended. Dr. Chapman made one of his stirring addresses, and Charles M. Alexander sang some of his songs. Admission to this meeting was by ticket only.

To-night at Tremont Temple, at 7:45, Dr. Chapman will lead another great mass meeting, and Mr. Alexander will direct the singing. People planning to attend this meeting should start early, for it is likely that this first Saturday night meeting will attract a great throng of people eager to hear Dr. Chapman's message.

Meeting for Unemployed.

If Dr. Chapman meets the suggestion of a number of prominent men he will hold a service for the unemployed of Boston on February 15. He has received a letter signed by Boston men asking that next Monday be set aside especially for the army of men who are out of work. Dr. Chapman recently held conferences with Morrison I. Swift, and was so favorably impressed he declared he might give a day to the unemployed. A new impetus is given to the plan by the letter. It is signed by Rev. William Harman van Allen, George Fred Williams, Henry Abrahams, Dr. Levi Parker, P. F. O'Neil, J. A. Haloran, Mrs. S. H. Merryfield, Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, A. R. Lopez, J. D. Williams, Houghton & Dutton Company, Alexander McGregor, treasurer, Edward S. Crockett, Fred Carter Carr, Charles S. Baxter, F. W. B. Pratt, Henry B. Blackwell, Frederick W. Mansfield, M. McDonald, Daniel W. Callahan, James A. B. Beatty, Louis Kesselman, Joseph Coleman and Morrisson I. Swift.

15,000 Needy Aided.

Fifteen thousand people were reached by the revivalists yesterday—"The Day of Rejoicing." It is estimated $5,000 worth of food was distributed among the needy and sick of the city. The donations amounted to nearly $6,000 in food and $1,000 in cash. More than 2,000 baskets were distributed from Tremont Temple and the various churches. In spite of the scores of willing workers who assisted in the distribution it was impossible to give away all the donations and the work will be continued until the funds and supplies are exhausted.

Homes bowed down in grief because of the great white plague were in the majority of cases visited by the dispensers of food yesterday. Not a few of them were without money and were in actual need of assistance.

Other homes where the head of the family had been taken away through some misfortune or other agencies were made happy by a visit of the team bearing the contributions of the Christian people of Boston.

Clothing for Children.

Children who were going about the streets without clothing to protect them from the wintry winds were supplied with the necessary articles. Shoes and coats were procured for them, and coal was put in their bins, that they might have a warm home to go to.

It was the greatest occasion of the year for the churches. The Rev. Fred B. Fisher said last night: "I tell you, when you can reach the people with food and things that they need most you can show them that the church has an interest not only in their spiritual welfare, but the welfare of their bodies."

All over the city glowing reports of the success of the Day of Rejoicing were given, and one of the greatest days of the entire campaign was passed.

Five Thousand Turned Away.

A great throng of people attended yesterday afternoon's meeting at Tremont Temple, where Commander Eva Booth of the Salvation Army, and Dr. Chapman spoke. It is estimated that 5,000 were unable to gain admission. The doors were closed half an hour before the scheduled time of the meeting. Miss Booth spoke of the power of sacred songs to reach the hearts of men and women. "There is no other music but the song of the redeemed to hold the heart and sustain the spirit," he said. "That is eternal."

Announcement is made that for the closing days of the revival, February 18-21, seats will be reserved for each meeting in Mechanics Hall for people coming from a distance, and who have been unable to attend other service because of lack of room.

STAYS SENTENCE ON PRISONER'S PLEA

"Won't you give me a chance, your honor, to show that I am innocent? I didn't steal anything, and if you give me a few days I can bring men here to corroborate what I say." This appeal, made to Judge Ely in the Municipal Court to-day, caused the court to revoke a sentence of two months which it had passed on Thomas Sedgwick of Manchester, N. H., charged with the larceny of a horse blanket and a pair of skates. Sedgwick's case was continued to next Monday. He was arrested last night on Causeway street, near the North station.

HELD FOR THEFT OF $250 DIAMOND

While trying to sell a $250 diamond ring to-day Harry Rosenberg, nineteen years old, of No. 227 Blue Hill avenue, was arrested on a charge of larceny by officers of the Joy street station. The police say the ring was stolen by Rosenberg from some unknown person. Rosenberg says he found the ring in the street. Arraigned before Judge Ely, he was held in $800 until February 15.

BELIEVE HILL SELECTED AS PROSECUTOR

The Republican friends of Lawyer Arthur D. Hill feel satisfied that Governor Draper has offered him the position of district attorney to fill out the rest of the term of John B. Moran, and that Mr. Hill has accepted.

Mr. Hill was asked to-day whether this report was true, and he refused to discuss the matter. A few days ago, when his name was first mentioned, Mr. Hill said that if he were offered the position he would think it over very seriously before he acted.

His friends and those who are in close touch with the powers of the Republican party are of the opinion that he has decided to take the place.

This opinion has been strengthened by the fact that Senator Lodge is known to have advocated Hill's appointment, and the further fact that the Senator was the guest of the Governor yesterday.

"You can say this without fear of making a mistake," one of Mr. Hill's friends said to-day, "his name will be one of those considered by the executive council next Wednesday."

The selection will be made on Wednesday. Mr. Hill has a lucrative law practice, and this would naturally suffer if he were made district attorney, but it is believed that he has been shown that it is his duty to take the place.

FIND MAID GUILTY OF STEALING $65

On the charge of stealing $65 from Miss Ruby A. Johnson, a Cambridge school teacher, Theresa Allston, colored, a maid, was found guilty. It was charged that the Allston woman robbed a trunk in Miss Johnson's apartment of the money. Judge Wentworth continued the case until March 10 in order that restitution might be made.

THERE WILL BE NO MISERY FROM INDIGESTION OR UPSET STOMACH

ou can eat anything your stomach ves without fear of a case of Indi- stion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will take Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

VALENTINES UNSENT

By Wex Jones

TAFT.

My heart is filled with love for you,
So cute and cunning, plump and sweet;
Without you I could never do—
You're truly "good enough to eat."
Oh, with what gusto I shall dine,
Since, 'Possum, you're my Valentine.

ROCKEFELLER.

My lovely queen by far surpasses
The fairest one of all your lasses;
No lover cooking with emotion
Can rival my intense devotion.
Talk not of eyes and lips and kisses,
And hearts and other foolish blisses—
No form so fair or look so rare
As $ sign, my Valentine.

ROOSEVELT.

Come, roaring lion, chubby hippo,
And meet me when I take my trip O,
And if you bring a whitewashed rhino
And squat baboon I'll think it fine O;
'Twill thrill me through from toes to spine
If you'll become my Valentine.

CONGRESS.

A Hawkshaw, with the false pazazzas!
Lurking on porches and piazzas,
Beware; we shall regain our starch
And backbone on the Fourth of March. . . .
Oh, quickly let that morning shine—
The Calendar's our Valentine.

THE SUFFRAGETTE.

At once a tyrant and a chump,
Your cruel form I love to thump,
Or take you by the raucous throat
And choke from man the right to vote—
Then I'll be boss and you'll resign,
And I shall have my Valentine.

SENT TO STATE FARM.

It required just twenty-five minutes to-day to dispose of Patrick Grant, fifty years of age, who has no home and who begs for his living at different stores. At 10:30 he was arrested by policemen of the Hanover street station, and at 11 o'clock Judge Ely in the Municipal Criminal Court sent him to the Bridgewater Farm.

POLICE HUNT MISSING GIRL IN CAMBRIDGE

A general police alarm was sent out in Boston and Cambridge to-day to look for Miss Beatrice Angell, a pretty girl of seventeen, who has been mysteriously missing from her home in Cambridgeport since Thursday.

The girl's mother, Mrs. Frank S. Clifford, of No. 458 Putnam avenue, is prostrated with fear. Miss Angell was employed by a slot machine company on Eliot street. She left home Thursday morning to go to her work as usual.

It was learned since then that Miss Angell and another girl who worked at the same place quit their work and started out to look for other employment. Miss Angell's companion told Mrs. Clifford that the last she saw of Beatrice was about 5 o'clock on Thursday evening, at the South Station.

The missing girl wore a blue gown and a black hat trimmed with pink. She is about 5 feet 7 inches in height and weighs about 125 pounds.

"I cannot think what has become of Beatrice," sobbed her mother to-day. "I can't sleep for the awful fear that something has happened to her. She is a good girl and there was no reason why she should have gone away.

"She was not keeping company with any young man, and I feel sure that there is no love affair behind her going away. I am afraid that she got hurt and is in a hospital. If she would only send me word that she is safe it would lift a great load of heart-breaking worry."

Saxe, John Leahy, Thomas Conway, William Brophy, Jeremiah McCarthy, James Brophy, Patrick Coleman, William Grady, John Lamphier, Maurice McCarthy, William Mailow and Harry Sullivan.

COAST PLAYERS ARE FUSSY.

Joe Cantillon is learning the lesson that has come to so many managers, that California ballplayers are the hardest brand to handle.

In addition to Bill Burns and Walter Johnson, it is now reported that "Dolly" Gray, whom Joe bought from Los Angeles, is asking more coin than was offered him, threatening to play the outlaw game unless he gets the money.

It is alleged that Burns got to both Johnson and Gray, inducing them to stand with him.

FITZGERALD SEES RIVAL IN STORROW

In this week's issue of his paper, the Republic, ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald points out that James J. Storrow is planning a campaign to be candidate for the Mayoralty nomination. He says it is probable that Mr. Storrow will have the largest campaign fund ever used in a municipal contest. Fitzgerald also predicts that Bernard J. Rothwell will be the new president of the amalgamated association of the Boston Merchants' Association and the Chamber of Commerce. The former Mayor says:

"Signs multiply that James J. Storrow is planning a campaign for the Mayoralty this coming Fall. It is pretty certain that if Mr. Storrow enters the field he will have a bigger campaign chest than wes ever before used in the history of politics in this part of the country, and the boys will have the time of their lives.

"As we said a few days ago, it is whispered among prominent members of the Merchants' Association that he will be only too anxious to get out on the plea that the business interests of the city demand that he run for Mayor, and turn the head job over to Mr. Rothwell.

"We had hoped for better things from Mr. Storrow, because he is so far and away ahead of Mr. Rothwell as a business man that no proper comparison could be made between the two men, and he ought to stick to his post and make Boston's business men wake up.

"We would suggest to the merchants of Boston, who are sincerely interested in the upbuilding of this great city, to watch the political acrobats who are now manoeuvring for positions. Boston's politics are not nearly in as bad a way as some of Boston's big establishments. As rabid as the Finance Commission members proved themselves to be, no dishonesty was shown. Could this be said of some large business establishments in Boston, particularly those which are controlled by men who pose before the community as civic purists, if the lid were lifted?"

POLICE HUNT GIRL THIEF

Inspectors from police headquarters are to-day trying to locate a pretty and smart gowned young woman, who it is believed, stole a pocketbook containing $23 from Mrs. Albert Thorndyke, a wealthy society woman of No. 337 Beacon street, while Mrs. Thorndyke was shopping in a down town music store.

Mrs. Thorndyke laid her pocketbook on the counter. A young woman, who was standing by her side left the store a few minutes later, and it is believed she took the pocketbook.

The Thorndykes are prominent socially. They have a town home and a Summer residence at Weston. Mr. Thorndyke is connected with the firm of Jackson & Curtis, No. 19 Congress street.

MORAN'S BODY ON WAY EAST

The body of John B. Moran, late District Attorney of Boston, who died in Phoenix, Ari., after a gallant fight for his life, is on its way to Boston, and is expected to reach here Wednesday.

The body started on its journey last night over the Southern Pacific road, accompanied by the brother of the deceased, Alonzo I. Moran.

The funeral arrangements are not complete, but it is said services will be held at the family home, a Catholic priest officiating. Interment will be made at the Holy Cross Cemetery.

POLICE SEEK MAN FOR CHECK FRAUD

The police have sent out warning to business men to be on their guard against a swindler who is working in this city. The man, who is about 5 feet 10 inches in height and weighs in the vicinity of 130 pounds, is working business men by way of a check. His method is to enter a place after closing time for the banks and saying that he needs the money in a hurry will tender the check.

OPERATION MAY SAVE FIREMAN'S LIFE

John Gibbons, a hoseman from the Friend street engine house, who sustained a fractured spine by falling from a fire escape at No. 72 Commercial street yesterday, was successfully operated upon at the City Hospital to-day. Although he is still on the dangerous list, the surgeons are hopeful of his recovery.

The operation was a very delicate one, it being necessary to set the fractured bones back in place without injuring the spinal cord.

WARREN GOODWIN AND HIS PRIZED TERRIER "PATSY"

PET DOG LOST, LITTLE BOY ILL

Every policeman in Cambridge is looking for "Patsy," the prize-winning Boston terrier of little Warren Goodwin, eight years old. The boy's eyes have not been dry since his beloved dog disappeared yesterday in a crowd in the street while Warren was on his way to meet his father coming home from work. The Goodwins live at No. 10 Blanche street, Cambridgeport.

"Warren cried all night in his sleep," said Mrs. Robert Goodwin, mother of the boy, "and I had to wake him several times he was in so much distress. He is heartbroken over the loss of "Patsy." The dog, which has been awarded prizes in New York, was given to the boy by a friend.

"Warren and the dog started to meet my husband on his way home from work, and while they were on Green street the animal disappeared in the crowd.

"I'm sure if the AMERICAN publishes the picture of the dog somebody will return him, for they wouldn't dare to dispose of him or to keep him after that."

SOCIALISTS SEEK DEBATE WITH HUGO

The Socialist party has challenged George B. Hugo, president of the Employers' Association of Boston, to meet James F. Carey in public debate. The subject is to be, "Socialism a Menace to Society." The challenge is made in an open letter to Mr. Hugo. It comes as the result of a recent address delivered by him before his association, in which he is said to have declared that Socialism was a menace to society.

EXPLOSION OF GAS SMASHES BIG WINDOWS

Investigation of an explosion which blew out the big plate glass windows in the retail store of the Welsbach Company of New England, No. 24 Summer street, and destroyed several thousand dollars worth of stock at midnight last night has been begun by the State police. It is believed the explosion was caused by a leakage of gas from a defective pipe in the basement, which was set off by a lighted jet in the store.

The front of the store, expensive lamps, candelebra and fixtures were blown half way across Summer street by the force of the explosion. Only the fact that there were few people in the vicinity prevented injury to passersby.

The explosion sounded like the loud roar of a cannon. It was heard by Patrolman J. V. Daly, who was a block away.

The watchman of the C. F. Hovey store across the street pulled in an automatic alarm in the Hovey store, but the fire apparatus was not needed. Fire Chief Mullen, however, turned off the gas in the store.

At daylight an inspection of the store showed that five plate glass windows, valued at $1,000, were blown to atoms, the entire array of lamps and supplies in the show windows scattered and shattered, stock in crates in the cellar badly damaged and an entire cellar partition blown away.

GIANT BREAKS WOMAN'S JAW

Miss May Cohen, frail of figure and pressing her hand to a jaw that had been broken with a blow that had also knocked out five of her teeth, appeared in the Lynn Police Court to-day and charged Leonard W. Burnham, a giant of 200 pounds, with the brutal attack.

Burnham is a leather worker and lives at No. 161 Union street, a lodging house. Miss Cohen lives at the same place. She told the Court that Burnham struck her with his fist last Sunday and that she had not been able to get to court before.

The record of the man was shown in court and established that he had before been in the court for beating women. Once he hit his wife and she got a divorce. Burnham was sent to the House of Correction for two months.

BURGLAR BAND LOOTS HOUSE

Police are hunting the daring band of burglars that ransacked the home of William E. Farwell of No. 25 Winter street, Watertown, taking jewelry valued at about $1,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Farwell left their home in the afternoon and went to New Hampshire. When Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Randall, who also live in the house, arrived home about 11 p. m. they were greatly suprised to see the house all lighted up and the doors open. The house had been completely ransacked.

Among the articles stolen were a pair of gold bracelets, gold watches, stickpins and a collection of rare old coins.

HOCKEY GAME CALLED OFF.

Willard, the Harvard captain, will endeavor to have the contest on Monday if the Dartmouth players can remain over till then. The game is the most important of the intercollegiate series, as both teams are tied for the high honors.

TAFT ENJOYS CREOLE FARE AT BIG FEAST

Recipe for Bouillabaise

Six slices of red snapper, six slices of red fish, half bottle of white wine, half a lemon, six large fresh tomatoes, three onions, three sprouts of garlic, three bay leaves.

Thackeray on Bouillabaise

This bouillabaise a noble fish is,
A sort of soup or broth or stew,
Or hotchpotch of all sorts of fishes,
That Greenwich never could outdo;
Green herbs, red peppers, mussels, saffron,
Soles, onion, garlic, roach and dace,
All these you eat at Terre's tavern
In that one dish of bouillabaise.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13.—"The winter capital of the South," as numerous electrice lights and the newspapers designate this town, gave a dinner to William H. Taft, that was marked by the presence of 1,000 guests and by a creole bill of fare. The creole menu was the feature.

The dinner was given in the newly decorated banquet hall of the Grunewald Hotel, where Mr. Taft is quartered. The thousand citizens paid $25 each for places at the board and from the early beginning until the late ending the scene was one of animation.

One of the chief dishes was "boullebaise," the recipe for which includes six slices of red snapper, six slices of red fish, half a bottle of white wine, half a lemon, six large fresh tomatoes, three onions, three cloves of garlic and three bay leaves.

This is the dish that drew from Thackeray the remark that "In New Orleans you can get a bouillebaise the like of which was never eaten in Marseilles or Paris."

Creole gumbo was also served, and a recipe was given to the Taft party.

Casburgot Chambord was another feature of the repast. The richness of this dish may be judged from the ingredients, which include a fine sheep's head, two dozen oysters, three large tomatoes, one cup of stale bread, three sprigs each of thyme and parsley, a quart of fresh mushrooms, two large onions, two bay leaves, three cloves, one bottle of white wine, and salt and pepper to taste.

As no public reception had been held, it was suggested to Mr. Taft that he shake hands with some of the people before he went into dinner. For an hour a stream of visitors passed up on broad stairway, shook hands with Mr. Taft and passed down another stairway to the lobby and the street.

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, Feb. 13.—Commenting on the conditions of business throughout the country, as reported by its correspondents, Dun's Review says.

"Industrial conditions improve slowly, and retail trade, which is usually quiet at this season, is much restricted, the distribution of merchandise being correspondingly reduced. In some sections there is still much idleness, and machinery is operated only to partial capacity in many important industries. With the earning capacity of labor considerably under the high average of the active years prior to last year, consumption will naturally remain curtailed.

"High wheat values and apparent scarcity, interrupt flour output, and irregularity in iron prices tends to postpone contracts that would add somewhat to the present restricted production. The open Winter weather has facilitated building operations in most sections, and permits issued in leading cities indicate greater activity than a year ago, but less than in recent preceding years.

"The factor of strength is the depleted stocks, which have been further reduced, and in no line is there an excess, although furnace interests continue to store some pig iron, but it is believed this will be in demand when the needs of manufacturers are larger. In some important lines of woolen and cotton fabrics manufacturers complain of inadequate supplies, and those markets are in consequence very strong. Foreign commerce continues to show an advance in imports, at this port alone for the latest week exceeding a year ago by $5,454,470, and nearly as large as in 1907; exports are still far below the heavy movement a year ago and $2,808,787 under 1907. Railway earnings for January decreased 4.6 per cent. as compared with 1907, and bank clearings for February to date are 12.2 per cent. less than in the active year 1906."

Summers was hired when the bank officials were unable to open the vaults. Summers was hired to go to jail with $50,000. All went well until Summers was invited to take dinner with the family of the girl he is going to marry. The bank president was willing to wait up, but the sheriff wouldn't. Summers quit without further notice, and that night the president, his pockets stuffed with bills, sat up in jail himself.

CHRONIC STOMACH TROUBLE CURED BY TONIC TREATMENT

Near-by Evidence, Easily Investigated, of the Wonderful Success of This Method in Curing Even the Most Obstinate Cases.

There are two old-fashioned methods of treating chronic dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach or chronic gastritis.

First, that which prescribes pepsin, dilute hydrochloric acid and other ferments to help the digestive juices.

Second, that which seeks to stimulate the glands to greater activity.

Both have the defect that too often when the treatment stops the benefit stops and the trouble returns in an aggravated form. The truth of this statement is all too evident to many who have tried either treatment.

Direct Cause of Stomach Trouble

A strong, healthy stomach and a good digestion are out of the question if the blood is impure. In fact the quality and amount of work done, not only by the stomach, but by every organ of the body, depends upon the richness of the blood that it receives. Thin, weak blood makes weak and diseased tissues and lowers the working capacity of every organ.

It should always be borne in mind that the direct cause of stomach trouble is impure blood. The indirect causes, such as excesses in eating or the eating of improper or badly cooked food, the run-down condition resulting from overwork or nervousness affect the stomach only when they impoverish the blood. Stomach trouble can be permanently cured only when its direct cause, which is impure blood, has been removed.

Tone Up the Stomach

The modern method of treatment is to tone up the stomach and glands to do their normal work, and this is the mission of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They give the stomach strength to do its work by furnishing it with a normal supply of pure, red blood. As the stomach gains in strength, there is a healthy desire for food and an improved digestion. Every step toward recovery is a step gained not to be lost again. The recovery of the appetite the disappearance of pain, the absence of gas—all are steps on the road to health that those who have tried the tonic treatment remember distinctly.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic, every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs and therefore are the ideal remedy for chronic cases of stomach trouble. The success of the treatment is shown by hundreds of cures like the following recently reported from nearby places.

SUFFERED THREE YEARS.

How a Severe Case of Stomach Trouble at Lowell Was Cured

Mrs. A. L. Wardwell, of No. 282 Thorndyke street, Lowell Mass., tried many remedies for indigestion but found no cure until she used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She says:

"For nearly three years I suffered with indigestion and would often be in bed for a day or two. My stomach was in a terrible condition. Sometimes I would vomit and have severe pressing pains. To relieve the pains I had to apply hot applications on my stomach. I suffered from constipation. I could eat nothing but foods like rice and milk. Meats caused me great distress. My stomach was sour and I was short of breath.

"I doctored for about a year, but the help I got was only temporary. I read about a cure of a case of stomach trouble like mine, by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began using them. They helped me from the first and soon had my stomach in such shape that I could eat almost anything without distress. I have been well since and have had no more trouble with my stomach."

A CAMBRIDGE MAN

Tells How He Finally Found a Cure For Stomach Trouble.

The cure of Mr. G. W. Seaborne, proprietor of the Seaborne Sign Co., of No. 35 Brookline street, Cambridge, Mass., is a strong recommendation of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for use in all cases of stomach trouble. He says:

"About four years ago I was troubled with a very bad stomach. I was short of breath, gas formed on my stomach, my legs felt as though they would give away from under me and I had dizzy, fainting spells which came on me suddenly. My work at that time was on high scaffolding, and, as I nearly fell off once, I had to give it up. My mouth was dry and parched and had a bad taste in the morning.

"My doctor treated me for acute indigestion caused by a bad condition of the blood, but gave me no relief that I could see. Then I tried many medicines, but they did me no good, and so I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. In a few weeks I was much better and I took the pills until completely cured."

ANOTHER LOWELL CASE.

Stomach Trouble with Headaches and Nerovusness Cured at Last.

A recent cure by the tonic treatment is that of Mrs. Mary Stackpole, of No. 81 Liberty Street, Lowell, Mass. She says:

"I suffered constantly for years from stomach trouble and terrible backaches and was confined to my bed for the greater part of three years. I was under the care of our family physician most of the time, but did not seem to get better.

"I was completely run down and was not able to do my work about the house. My blood was impure and my complexion pale. I suffered from flashes of heat, followed suddenly by chills. I had awful headaches, which lasted from three to four days. I could get but little rest at night, as my sleep was broken and fitful. As a result I lost several pounds in weight and became very nervous.

"I was in a wretched condition when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my notice by a booklet which was left at my house. I started to take the pills at once and began to gain in weight and health. I was encouraged by this to keep on until I was cured. My friends and neighbors often remark what a changed woman I am, and I owe it all to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

A LUMP IN HIS STOMACH.

Sensation Described by a West Springfield Man Who Was Cured.

Mr. Arthur M. Stearns, a machinist in the B. & A. R. R. shops, living at No. 84 Hill street, West Springfield, Mass. says:

"A few years ago while living at Concord, N. H., I had a severe attack of stomach trouble, which lasted for eight weeks. At first there seemed to be a lump in my stomach causing a dull heavy feeling. Following this my stomach was very weak. Food distressed me and my digestion was poor. I suffered constantly with headaches over my eyes. I did not get much sleep and lost several pounds in weight. I had to give up my work entirely.

"What I had read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills convinced me that they would help me. A few boxes afforded relief and after a fair trial I was completely cured. I have had no trouble with my stomach since and am in good health."

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA.

A Conway, Mass., Woman Tells Tow Pink Pills Cured Her.

Mrs. Dwight Bond, of Conway, Mass., describing her cure from nervous dyspepsia, says:

"I suffered for a year with nervous dyspepsia, and was so run down that I couldn't work. There was a dull pain in my stomach and food didn't agree with me. I couldn't eat anything but the lightest food. I had chills and my limbs were so cold that I couldn't sleep without warming them. At night I would have dreadful smothering spells, which made me miserable. I had dizzy spells along toward evening and a creeping sensation up my back and pain in the left side. I couldn't take a long breath. I lost fifteen pounds in weight and was despondent.

"After being under a doctor's care for some time without much benefit I decided to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they had helped my sister so much. I began to feel better after taking the pills a short time and used them until I felt entirely well. I have regained my normal weight, my appetite is good and I am stronger in every way. I cannot speak too highly of the benefit I received from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

A CURE AT ROCKPORT.

Stomach Trouble Yields to Tonic Treatment After Other Remedies Fail.

Mrs. Frank Dobson, who resides at the corner of School street and Broadway, Rockport, Mass., says:

"My stomach trouble began through overeating, and I suffered for several months until I was relieved by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. There was a distressed feeling in my stomach after eating and I had to eat light foods. My stomach felt hard and after eating I would be troubled with gas, headaches and dizziness. I was short of breath.

"I tried many different medicines, but they seemed to make me worse. My mother urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as she has great faith in them. I began to get better in a short time and kept on with them until cured."

TOLD BY A NURSE.

How a Cure Was Effected When Hope Was Almost Gone.

Overwork and run-down condition frequently bring on an attack of stomach trouble. Such was the case with Mrs. Clara A. Graham, of No. 137 O street, South Boston, Mass. She says:

"I began to have stomach trouble about three years ago. It was a direct result of overwork and long hours following my occupation as a nurse. I suffered with gas on my stomach and would bloat, which caused me intense pains. There was a feeling as though something heavy was weighted against my stomach. The headaches and dizzy spells I suffered from were dreadful and there were hot flashes across my eyes. It seemed as though I could not stand the pain.

"I became no better with the treatment I was taking and was almost discouraged. I then decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which a friend in Dorchester had recommended to me. They helped me from the start. I could soon eat and sleep better, the pains in my stomach left me and I rapidly grew well."

FLATULENCY AND HEARTBURN.

A Severe Case of Dyspepsia Cured in East Boston.

Mr. John T. Coffin, of No. 157 Saratoga street, East Boston, is another who was cured by this treatment. He says:

"A few years ago I had dyspepsia in its worst form. In less than three months I lost about fifty pounds in weight. I had no appetite and everything I ate turned sour and caused me great distress. I suffered continually with headaches, flatulency, heartburn and constipation. I vomited frequently. I was nervous, restless at night and had palpitation of the heart. At times it seemed as though my breath would leave me. I was a physical wreck and prayed that I might die.

"I suffered in this way for over two years. I used all sorts of medicines and my doctor's bill ran into the hundreds, but to no purpose.

"While reading my newspaper one day I saw a case similar to mine that had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I sent for a box and used them according to directions. I found before long that the pills were doing the work, for my appetite improved and the headaches passed away. I gave the pills a thorough trial and was cured."

GAS ON THE STOMACH.

A Rhode Island Woman Tells How She Suffered.

"I was so low with stomach trouble that the doctors said I could not live three months, but now I am well and it is all due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," says Miss Rosalla Ostigny, of No. 114 Sylvian street, Central Falls, R. I. "The physicians said my trouble came from poor, thin blood and bad circulation. It made me weak and thin. I had no energy or ambition, my food did not digest, gas formed and I was generally miserable until, by my sister's advice, I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They helped me in a short time and I continued using them until entirely cured."

AT WILLIMANTIC.

Cure of a Case of Stomach Trouble Which Resisted Ordinary Remedies.

Mrs. Etta Donovan, of No. 762 Main street, Willimantic, Conn., gives Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enthusiastic praise. She says:

"My sickness began about five years ago and was caused by overwork. I had distressing pains in my stomach and I was obliged to be careful what I ate. I was unable to drink anything but hot water. My stomach would bloat and fill with gas and give me a nauseated feeling and heartburn. I had terrible pains in my heart and at times they were so severe that I could scarcely breathe. I could not go up stairs without resting because of palpitation of the heart. I had severe headaches which would last for a day or two and make me sick all over. They affected my eyes so that everything seemed to be blurred. Frequently I was faint and dizzy.

"I was treated by two doctors, but they treated me to no purpose and I then began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills upon the advice of a neighbor at Chatham, N. Y., where I was then living. I was greatly helped after taking a few boxes and used the pills until cured."

AMERICAN'S MEDALS FOR HONOR MARK

Amid all the elaborate and impressive celebrations of the Lincoln centennial which took place in Boston and the surrounding cities and towns, one of the most interesting was the observance of the day held by the people of St. Stephen's (colored) Baptist Church, at the corner of Harvard and Windsor streets, Cambridgeport.

The exercises were in charge of the pastor, the Rev. Johnson W. Hill, D. D., LL. D.

One of the leading spirits of the celebration was J. Wyeth Coolidge, the famous Abolitionist, who, although in his seventy-fifth year, entered into the patriotic enthusiasm of the hour with rare zest and animation.

In anticipation of the exercises, he had secured a number of the Lincoln medals which were issued last Sunday by the BOSTON AMERICAN. Mr. Coolidge had the medals pierced by a jeweler and rings inserted, through which he passed ribbons of gold and of red, white and blue.

As each speaker and singer advanced to the front of the store, Mr. Coolidge placed a Lincoln medal around his or her neck, and by the time the program had advanced towards the close, everybody on the platform was wearing a bright, golden medal.

The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Johnson Hill, and the other ministers present expressed great gratitude to Mr. Coolidge for his patriotic thoughtfulness in presenting the medals, and said they would be cared for and handed down to future generations as heirlooms of the church.

WOMAN SUES K. OF P. LODGE

Rose M. Porter, who refuses to give her home address, has sued the Knights of Pythias Lodge No. 143 of Watertown for $3,000, which she alleges is due her as a commission for collecting $60,000 for the erection of a building in that town to be used by the lodge.

Miss Porter gave No. 305 Kimball building this city as her address, and it is the premises of Bornstein & Long, real estate men. It was stated there that the room is not the woman's office.

"Where do you live?" Miss Porter was asked.

"Outdoors," she replied. She would not state where her home is. She explained her suit by saying:

"I was given an application blank to raise $54,000 to build the hall and I raised $60,000, but I could not get a lodge representative to meet this man. I have waited since August and am now suing for my commission. I shall fight the case as my own attorney."

Dr. W. B. Rich, president of the K. of P. lodge, against which Miss Porter, who is a young woman, has filed an attachment in the registry of deeds in East Cambridge, said about the suit:

"Miss Porter made the claim that she had a man with $60,000 to invest, but never produced him. She wanted us to pay her a commission before we had any proof the money would be forthcoming."

VOTING BEGINS MONDAY IN THE FROHMAN STAGE CONTEST

Three candidates for stage honors in the Frohman contest.

MISS YOAKUM SOON TO WED

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Miss Katheryne Yoakum, eldest daughter of Benjamin F. Yoakum, president of the Rock Island railroad, who is to be married on February 23 to Paulding Fosdick, of this city, will begin her home life in an elegant five-story brownstone mansion at No. 52 East Sixty-seventh street. The house, which is valued at $150,000, was purchased two weeks ago by Mr. Yoakum as a wedding present to his daughter.

It is said Mr. Yoakum will furnish the house in the best style. The young couple will commence housekeeping there immediately on their return from their honeymoon trip.

OFF TO FIND NEW ROUTE TO THE POLE

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Equipped with thirty-six pounds of sweet chocolate and sixty-five pounds of malted milk, Harry Vincent Radford left the Grand Central station last night to find a new route to the Arctic Ocean.

Mr. Radford has made arrangements with weekly publications to write for them while he is away. Then he aims to obtain specimens of the flora and fauna of Northwestern Canada. These he hopes to sell to scientific institutions when he returns. He expects to explore on snowshoes that section of Canada known on the maps as Mackenzie Province and to blaze out a new route across it to the Arctic Ocean.

To-day is the last day for submitting photographs for entry in the Charles Frohman American Beauty, Chorus Contest.

Pictures bearing a postmark up to midnight to-night will be considered. Anything later than that disqualifies the contestant.

After all the photographs are in, the committee of judges, consisting of Miss Hattie Williams, star of Mr. Frohman's musical comedy company now playing "Fluffy Ruffles" at the Park Theatre; Charles J. Rich, resident manager of the Charles Frohman, Rich & Harris Boston theatrical interests, and a representative of the BOSTON AMERICAN, will get to work immediately upon the task of selecting fifty photographs from the immense number sent in to the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Voting Begins on Monday.

Beginning Monday an instalment of five or six pictures chosen from these fifty will be printed, Tuesday another instalment will appear, and so on until the fifty have been published.

Each day accompanying the pictures will be printed a voting coupon, with which readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN may express their choice of photographs. The six girls receiving the highest number of votes will be declared the winners of the contest, the prizes for each of which is a forty-week contract at $25 a week in the chorus of one of Charles Frohman's companies.

The offer carries with it the probability that the lucky contestants may be taken to Europe in one of Mr. Frohman's companies and be given a chance to appear in a London playhouse.

Then there is the likelihood, also of advancement to the ranks of stars. Mr. Frohman is always looking for talent, and it may be that he will find material for the next big musical comedy star in the undeveloped talent supplied to him in this great contest.

Free Lessons in Dancing.

In addition to this Miss Hattie Williams has volunteered to pay the expenses of tuition in singing, dancing and acting to each of the six girls chosen to prepare her better for stage work.

Remember, those girls whose pictures first appear have no better chance in the race than those whose pictures appear as the last of the fifty, for the blank ballots can be clipped from the paper each day and held in reserve until the picture of your favorite candidate appears, if it has passed muster by the committee.

In that way there can be no advantage, no playing of favorites, for one candidate will have exactly the same oportunity as another.

The pictures will be designated by number. Until the six are chosen no names will be made known, and then only the names of the winners.

Losers Will Remain a Secret.

Photographs of the losers will be destroyed and candidates may have the satisfaction of knowing that they will be caused no embarrassment by giving publicity to their failure.

Additional details of the contest will appear in the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN to-morrow. If you are interested in any way in this contest order your paper to-day, so as to make sure you will get it and not be disappointed, as many persons were last Sunday, when they found the newsdealers "all sold out of AMERICANS."

For the third and last of the sonata recitals for piano and violin, announced by Mr. and Mrs. David Mannes, at Steinert Hall, next Friday evening, the selections include the sonata in D major by Handel, sonata in A major, op. 47, by Beethoven, and the sonata in G major, op. 78, by Brahms.

Miss Helen Allen Hunt, soloist at the Christian Science Temple, is to give a song recital in Potter Hall on Monday afternoon, March 1. She will have the assistance of Isadore Luckstone as accompanist.

Although the next recital by Mischa Elman, the young violinist, is not until Saturday afternoon, March 20, in Symphony Hall, Manager Mudgett has already received many subscription orders for seats for this event.

That Mme. Nordica is again to be given evidence of her popularity in her home city has already been shown by the great number of subscriptions received for the concert she announces at Symphony Hall on Saturday afternoon, February 27. She is to have the assistance of the artists who have accompanied her throughout her present tour, Miss Emma Showers, pianist, a Memphis girl, who has gained much favorable comment; Frederick Hastings, a baritone singer, and Andre Benoist, accompanist, all of whom will be heard in interesting selections.

Unusual interest has been shown in the coming joint recital of Mme. Emma Eames and Emilio de Gogorza at Symphony Hall next Saturday afternoon. It will be the occasion of the last appearance of Mme. Eames here for many years. She has concluded her engagement with the Metropolitan Opera House company and, after the concert tour which she begins here, is to go abroad for a number of years to fill engagements.

Lovers of the semi-classical songs possessing at the same time just a touch of religious suggestion will welcome the latest contribution by Arthur J. Lamb, writer of "Asleep in the Deep" and scores of other equally well-known solos. Mr. Lamb's "The Old Cathedral Chimes" has just been issued with a title page which in itself is a work of art.

Music lovers are to be privileged to enjoy two evenings of grand opera in Italian next month, when G. Lo Giudice-Fabri, director and manager of the Commonwealth Opera Company, is to present excerpts from two of Verdi's operas and also one by Mascagni. The performances have been under preparation for some time and will be given in Jordan Hall on Monday, March 8, and Tuesday, March 9.

In all probability, Mr. Fiedler and the Symphony Orchestra will repeat Strauss's tone-poem, "A Hero's Life," at the concert for the Pension Fund of the band on Sunday, February 28. Thus, the general public, outside the regular audiences of the Symphony Concerts, will have opportunity to hear Mr. Fiedler in Strauss's music, and he is the most sympathetic and significant conductor of it that Boston has yet heard.

SCORES 'NEW THOUGHT' AS MERE LUNACY

"Watered down imitations of Hinduism." is the epigrammatic appellation applied by the Rev. Dr. William H. van Allen to the scores of "new thought" beliefs which have lately sprung up, in his final lecture at the Church of the Advent on "Religious Lunacies."

Dr. van Allen declared that his discussion of what he styles "freak beliefs" must have accomplished some good, because of the many criticisms, pro and con, which he had received for his fearless speech.

He said further that he feared nothing from the bitter enemies he made. "The Spiritists have sent no spooks to haunt me," he said, "nor have any new thought waves of malevolence struck me.

"New thought," he continued, "professes to be on a higher plane. 'The religion of the higher life'! Think of it! Boston was founded in the sweat and blood of the holy name and for the honor of Christ. And yet it has been reserved for the New Thoughtists to found the 'religion of the higher.'

"I have just been reading a new thought periodical which tells how a new thoughtist, a woman, went to a place where there no new thoughtists. She found a spiritist who was very sympathetic and he fashioned for her a lucky pin.

"A lucky pin! O Danvers, O Taunton, O Westboro! open wide your arms and take in these lunatics. Each fragmentary truth by virtue of which these lunacies hold their ground is found in Christianity."

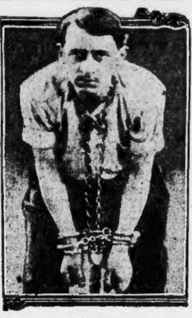
FRED GRAVEL, WHO BROKE RECORD OF WIZARD HOUDINI



ROXBURY MAN NEW HOUDINI

Fred D. Gravel of Roxbury, an employe at the Plant Shoe Company's factory, has beaten the record of Harry Houdini in escaping from a sole leather bag in which he was locked, handcuffed and shackled.

At the regular "hookless" night for amateurs at the Grand Opera House last night Gravel escaped in 12 minutes and 22 seconds from the same bag which kept Houdini prisoner for 21 minutes. The bag was made by Fred Cota of the Plant shop, who retained possession of it after Houdini had used it. The same handcuffs and shackles which Houdini used were employed on Gravel.

In addition to smashing the Houdini record, Gravel won first money in the amateur prize contest. A large delegation of his fellow employes applauded his success.

Mrs. Sadie Hurtig, the manager's wife; his sister-in-law, Mrs. Emma Wilson of Richmond, Va., and Max Hurtig, his brother, were at his bedside. Mr. Hurtig's grit throughout his fatal illness was remarkable. A tumor near the heart caused his death.

The people of Cambridge are fighting to retain the right to control the location of boat-house landings along the Charles River. The Committee on Metropolitan Affairs gave a hearing on the petition of George Hudson Cox and the bill to amend the acts of 1906 to provide that when the Charles River basin is transferred to the Metropolitan Park Commission on the completion of the dam in 1910, Cambridge will not lose this much of the control of the water front. City Solicitor Fevey spoke for the bill.

HILL'S ESSAYS ON LINCOLN TO BE REPRINTED

This announcement is of especial interest to-day to the boys and girls of all public, private, parochial and Sabbath schools in Greater Boston.

Because of the unprecedented interest taken in the series of articles on the life of Abraham Lincoln, written by Frederick Trevor Hill and published in a series of seven installments in the BOSTON AMERICAN, it has been decided to reprint the entire series of articles in to-morrow's edition of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN.

The reason why the publication of the entire series of Hill articles on Lincoln in to-morrow's paper is of great interest to all school boys and girls is the advantage it will give them in the great Lincoln composition contest which the AMERICAN is running.

In another column of the paper will be found the conditions of the competition.

Especial attention is called to the paragraph that "each composition must bear a certification by the writer's teacher in a public, private, parochial or Sabbath school that the writer is a pupil in that teacher's class, giving the name, age, address and school of the pupil. The compositions must be written on one side of the paper."

Hundreds of compositions have already been received in the office of the BOSTON AMERICAN, but this particular condition seems to have been ignored—a clause of the contest which, in justice to those who have not transgressed the stipulation, ought to disqualify the offenders.

In order that there can be no error in the future, the AMERICAN to-day prints a blank form which it is suggested should be sent in properly filled out with necessary signature where school boys and girls submit essays. Clip the blank form from the AMERICAN and attach it to the composition.

Do not fail to have the teacher's signature.

Compositions are to be not more than 500 words, and MUST BE BASED UPON THE HILL ARTICLES PRINTED in the BOSTON AMERICAN.

To the 200 pupils of the schools of Boston writing the best compositions based on these articles the AMERICAN will award a copy of "The Life of Lincoln," by Ida M. Tarbell. In addition to this the hundred best competitors will each receive $2.50. The teacher of each pupil who receives a cash prize will receive $2.50.

As the contest does not close until February 25, the reader of next Sunday's AMERICAN will have ample time to peruse the biography carefully and write the composition.

Not only will the school pupils find these articles profitable reading, but everybody interested in the wonderful life of one of the greatest men in history—and all Americans are—will find Mr. Hill's biography worthy of preserving in a scrap book.

OVERDUE SHIP REACHES PORT

The British tramp freight steamer, Sutherland, nine days overdue from Calcutta, arrived early to-day. She was delayed by storms.

A few days ago the steamer Vittoria de Larinaga, putting in at New York, reported a steamer in distress off Nantucket. The Larinaga did not go to her aid as no signal for help was displayed. It was figured, from description, that the vessel in trouble might be the Sutherland or the British tramp Iverness, both overdue from Calcutta.

Captain Parlett of the Sutherland says the last he saw of the Iverness was when both vessels put in at Oran, Dutch East Indies, about six weeks ago.

City Hall Notes

The board of trustees of the Long Island Almshouse has awarded a contract for 150 barrels of sugar at a figure over $2,000, without competition. It was given with the permission of the Mayor, and the reason for not advertising is given as the "rock bottom" price submitted.

Secretary White returned from New York with a weighty bundle of municipal reports of the city departments in the Metropolis. Included were copies of the "City Record," the official organ of municipal news in New York, which the secretary will study with the object of incorporating some of its features in Boston's City Hall paper if established. It is one of the articles that the Finance Commission recommends in its amended charter.

There were eighty-nine deaths among the employes of the street department within the past year, according to the figures submitted for the annual report.

Mayor Hibbard has invited a number of prominent citizens to call at his office on next Tuesday morning and give their views on the consolidation of certain city departments.

Street Commissioner Gallivan has received over a score of invitations to address organizations on the new street traffic rules. Since the rules are now more generally understood the commissioners have received hundreds of letters attesting their efficacy in solving the traffic problem in congested districts.

To Teachers and Pupils

Compositions in the BOSTON AMERICAN Lincoln contest will be accepted until midnight, February 25th. All compositions entered must bear a certificate by the teacher and must be addressed to Lincoln Centennial Competition, The BOSTON AMERICAN. The AMERICAN suggests the following form:

Name of pupil..............................
Age of pupil..............................
Address of pupil..............................
Grade..............................

I hereby certify that the writer is a pupil in said grade, and that I believe the composition to have been written by him (or her) without outside aid.

Name of teacher..............................
School..............................
Address of teacher..............................

For convenience teachers may, if they prefer, clip this form, fill it out, and attach it to the composition.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

TO BE WRITTEN BEFORE FEB. 25

Owing to the great demand for back numbers of the Boston American containing the Lincoln Essays by Frederick Trevor Hill, and the impracticability of supplying the demand,

The entire series of Mr. Hill's Essays on Lincoln will be reprinted in tomorrow's Boston Sunday American

As the contest does not close until Feb. 25, this will give ample time to enter the competition, after reading the Lincoln articles in Sunday's American.

All compositions must be based on the seven articles by Frederick Trevor Hill, the well-known authority on the life of Abraham Lincoln, published in the Boston American. Contestants are to read all the articles before submitting essays, which must be received at the Boston American office before midnight, Feb. 25.

The Pupils

are to write compositions of not over 500 words based on these articles, which will be within the comprehension of school children, and written specially with a view to stimulating young minds toward the emulation of Lincoln's career.

Fifty prizes, Ida M. Tarbell's "Life of Lincoln," for best compositions written by pupils over 16 years of age.

Fifty prizes, Ida M. Tarbell's "Life of Lincoln," for best compositions written by pupils 14 and not over 16.

Fifty prizes, Ida M. Tarbell's "Life of Lincoln," for best compositions written by pupils 12 and not over 14.

Fifty prizes, Ida M. Tarbell's "Life of Lincoln," for best compositions written by pupils 10 and not over 12.

100 cash prizes of $2.50 gold piece each will be awarded according to the classifications given above to the writers of the best 25 compositions in each division in addition to the books.

The teacher of each pupil to whom a cash prize is awarded will also receive a prize of $2.50 gold piece.

Each proposition must bear a certification by the writer's teacher in a public, private, parochial, or Sabbath school that the writer is a pupil in that teacher's class, giving the name, age, address, and school of the pupil. The compositions must be written on only one side of the paper.

Mayor Hibbard's Approval

CITY OF BOSTON.
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR,
FEBRUARY 3, 1909.

To the Editor of the AMERICAN:

One of the most important tasks before the Municipal Lincoln Day Committee has been the work of interesting the children in all the schools in the study of the life of the Great Emancipator.

For that reason I am very glad indeed to commend the project arranged by the AMERICAN, by which prizes are to be given to the children for the best compositions on his life.

In preparation for this contest the children, and their parents as well, will be brought to a more complete study of his wonderful character. It is a most commendable piece of newspaper effort.

Yours respectfully,
G. A. HIBBARD, Mayor.

A committee designated by the BOSTON AMERICAN will make the awards. In its decision the committee will consider the following points in their respective order:

1. Neatness.
2. Legibility.
3. Intelligence of summary of Mr. Hill's articles.
4. English.

The ten best compositions will be published in the BOSTON AMERICAN. A full list of those to whom awards will be made will also be published in the BOSTON AMERICAN.

All compositions must be based on the Frederick Trevor Hill articles, which will be reprinted in full in to-morrow's Sunday American, and should be addressed to

LINCOLN CENTENNIAL COMPETITION,
THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

Special Notice to School Children

There will be an increased demand for the Boston Sunday American, containing Frederick Trevor Hill's articles on the Life of Lincoln, and as the news-stand supply will be exhausted early, it will be necessary to place your order with your newsdealer immediately.

ATTELL VS. DRISCOLL

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—It is likely that Abe Attell and Jem Driscoll will be matched to-day to meet in a ten-round bout at the Fairmount A. C. of this city.

Attell's manager telegraphed from Dayton, O., that Attell would agree to meet Driscoll in a ten-round bout at 124 pounds, weigh in at 6 o'clock, and that he wanted Charley White to referee. It is believed that before signing articles Attell will insist upon a $1,000 forfeit from Driscoll, $500 for weight and $500 for appearance, as the American champion has always been a stickler for such conditions.

Competent judges who have followed ring contests for twenty years declared that Jem Driscoll was a greater boxer than Young Griffo, who came here from Australia in the early '90s with a reputation for cleverness. They said that Driscoll was faster than Griffo, also a harder hitter. Griffo, it will be recalled, had a phenomenal defence, but he was comparatively weak in attack. In fact when he was at his best he could not deliver a blow hard enough to hurt a green amateur, but he could score the points with wonderful rapidity.

Driscoll, while not a slugger in the full meaning of the word, can put plenty of steam into his blows, and as he knows how to land them he can inflict punishment. In the battle with Cross he did very little work with his right hand. He jabbed with the left repeatedly and scored a majority of the points with it. Some of the ringside sharps believed he did not extend himself to the limit, as he was anxious to save himself for the proposed ten-round bout with Attell.

CHICAGO GETS PRELIM. GAMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—At the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association the election of officers resulted as follows: Dr. James Dwight of Boston, president; E. D. Wrenn of New York, vice-president; A. L. Hoskins of Philadelphia, secretary; Richard Stevens of Hoboken, treasurer; R. D. Little, W. A. Larned, F. E. Presbrey, D. F. Davis, Ralph Holterhoff, L. D. Scott, W. J. Clothier, L. H. Waldner and E. F. Torrey, executive committee.

From all over the country requests were received to be admitted to the national championship doubles. This was allowed, so that the east, south, west and far west will each be represented by championship pairs at the challenge match at Newport. It was decided to take the preliminary matches away from the Crescent A. C., Brooklyn, and to hold them at the Onwentsia Country Club, Chicago.

As heretofore the men's national championship matches will be held at Newport, R. I., and the women's at the Philadelphia Cricket Club.

$2,500 FOR GAMIN II.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—At the last day of the dog show Gamin II., a handsome French bulldog owned by Joseph J. and Thomas J. Murphy of Dorchester, Mass., was sold for $2,500, the purchaser being W. H. Van Orden, a Manhattan banker.

Gamin had just completed the necessary points to a championship, having won a leg in the Aquehung Farm Club trophy for best American bred, a special for best American bred offered by R. Hunt, and a special for best American bred offered by Miss Verona Jarbeau. He whelped October 22, 1907, and was fourteen months old when shown for the first time at the French bulldog show of 1908 at Horticultural Hall, Boston.

DRESS SUITS FOR HUNTERS.

Hunters out in Nebraska are figuring on going to the woods and fields and marshes in evening dress suits. A bill before the Legislature out there prohibits hunters from putting up blinds or wearing waders, so they are calculating on spike tails being next in line.

BOXING BITS OF NEWS

Emergency Kelley is after Monks the Newsboy, the pride of Providence, and the pair are likely to be matched up shortly.

It appears that Jack Johnson is coming back to America after all. Probably jealous of the attention and the bank roll Jim Jeffries is getting.

For the third time Abe Attell chastised an alleged pugilist named Eddie Kelly the other night. And still those New Orleans promoters fall for it.

It will be one huge joke on Battling Nelson if the California Legislature succeeds in killing the fight game. Bat, however, is not a believer in practical jokes.

Jem Driscoll says that when he is hit by an opponent he tries not to get hit again. Jem should copy the American idea of when hit to run in and clinch.

According to the autobiography of one Battling Nelson, Billy Nolan cost him just $50,000. Those who know Bat aver that he would rather lose his right arm than that much money.

Promoter Hugh McIntosh of Australia, now in England, is planning to get hold of Jack O'Brien, to match against Sam Langford when the Hub colored slugger gets across the water.

A dispatch says that Mike Schreck "crawled out" of a match with Tony Ross. It must have been a good-sized hole for Schreck to crawl through, as Mike weighs 212 pounds.

The Washington Birthday boxing card Jim Coffroth was arranging at Frisco has fizzled since McFarland skipped for Chicago. Jimmy Regan, who defeated Jimmy Walsh, against Monte Attell is the only thing he has in sight.

No one was more surprised at Matty Baldwin's poor showing against Owen Moran than Mike Devenney, the king of Highland Lake, where Matty trained. He said Matty showed at his best while getting in shape down at the lake.

Young Donahue is up against a tough proposition at New Orleans, on Saturday, in Phil Brock, who went twenty-five rounds with Freddie Welsh, beat George Memsic and fought Packy McFarland to a standstill. He figures on holding Brock for the ten rounds.

Mickey Gannon has been matched to fight Cyclone Johnny Thompson before the National Athletic Club of New York on the night of February 26. The boys are to weigh 140 pounds, ringside. The negotiations will bring Mickey another step nearer the lightweight title.

NANCY HANKS "AT HOME"

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 13.—Probably the most unique celebration in connection with the Lincoln centenary was the reunion of the family of Nancy Hanks, 2:04, the trotting queen, named in honor of the mother of Abraham Lincoln, at Hamburg place, the home of John E. Madden. The affair, which took the form of a public reception to Nancy Hanks and her descendants was given by Edward and Joseph Madden, sons of the well-known turfman and owners of Nancy Hanks. It was as happy in every detail as it was unique in its conception.

Early in the day the gates at Hamburg Place were thrown open and all the forenoon a constant stream of persons was received. Madden and his two sons received visitors in the gymnasium. From the gymnasium the callers were directed to the home of Nancy Hanks. Her stable was especially prepared for the occasion, being decorated with pictures of Lincoln and Washington and by the national colors. Nancy Hanks is now twenty-one years old, but well preserved for her age. The noble mare seemed to feel the importance of the occasion and carried herself with becoming dignity during the reception.

Her progeny on exhibition with her were her daughters, Nancy McKerron, 2:18¾, by John A. McKerron, 2:04½; Markala, 2:18¼, by Peter the Great, 2:07¼, and Mary Todd, a yearling, by Todd, 2:14¾.

NATION'S BOWLERS HEADED FOR N. Y.

It is getting more and more apparent every day that the bowlers who attend the National Bowling Association tournament in Madison Square Garden, New York, May 24 to June 12, are going to meet with a number of surprises—so many, in fact, that they will be completely astonished. Every day letters are being received from bowling clubs in the most remote sections of America asking how to go about it to enter the Madison Square Garden tournament. And is it any wonder that bowlers are enthused, with $50,000 in prizes to shoot for and $1,000 guaranteed to the winning five-men team, twenty-four alleys to roll on in New York's most famous public building, an elaborate scoring system costing $1,000 to install, teams from California and Germany, with hundreds of others, special tournaments for Elks, Masons, Mechanics, Arcanumites, Odd Fellows and other fraternal people, matches between the nation's best pink knights, that bowlers west of the Hudson River are coming to New York in droves, while the New Yorkers will stand ready to roll the pick of the nation, if for nothing else than local pride in the world's greatest tournament.

MARATHON "RAIN CHECKS."

A New York person advocates that "collapse checks" be issued for Marathon races. The "collapse check" is intended to work as the rain check in baseball. Whenever an athlete goes under and the race fizzles out, the "collapse check" is good for the next performance. The management of the long distance events will probably not be able to see its advantages with a spy glass, but only recent incidents need be recalled in order to show where the public would heartily approve the plan.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

Judging from advance notices the next Congress will probe everything except the world's series ticket scandal.

Mike Donlin wants nothing more than an annual stipend of 8,000 meg. Nothing of the piker in Miguel's makeup.

Fielder Jones has wired Comiskey that he will work for $20,000 the coming season. Only a week ago he demanded $30,000. Going down!

Tom Hughes of Altoona, a pitcher, has just been signed by the New Castle club of the Ohio and Pennsylvania League for the coming season.

Matty McIntyre, Detroit's left fielder, who has been suffering from appendicitis, is now well enough to demand that the Tigers hoist his salary.

The way Pulliam and Herrmann are keeping their typewriters busy, they will exhaust all their ammunition before they meet at Chicago next week.

"Maryland, My Maryland," is expected to be a popular song with the Athletics this year, for Baker, Plater and Nichols all come from that State.

George Stallings' action in squelching the Chesbro yarn failed to make much of a hit in Indianapolis. Happy Jack would have looked fine in a Hoosier uniform.

There is every reason to believe that Director William Murray, of the Phillies, will sign Manager William Murray to continue to lead the team after his present contract expires.

A Cincinnati minister accuses Billy Sunday, the evangelist, of raw work on the base lines. That's because the Cincinnati minister belongs in the big league while Sunday is an outlaw.

It was fitting that West Point should appoint Sam Strang its baseball coach. Many New York critics were not slow calling Strang a soldier during the last season of his career with the Giants.

Detroit is building a new plant to hold 25,000 persons. Why? There have been two world championships played there and the size of the crowds that attended never caused the building inspector to get uneasy.

Internal affairs on the Washington team are as placid as an ordinary session of the Douma. To preserve order Cantillon will have to split his team into three divisions and let them travel on separate trains while on the road.

The story that Buffalo is to replace Detroit in the American League is indeed a far-fetched story for the reason that Buffalo—a natural born minor league city would be no improvement over Detroit—another natural born bush league town.

Arlie Latham's engagement by the New York Giants as a sort of side attraction to McGraw's big show has set the other major league managers and many magnates and fans to speculation as to the propriety of introducing comedy—once so popular—into so serious a game as baseball has become.

As captain of the Detroit team "Germany" Schaefer will have to do most of the conversation work with the umpires, especially when Jennings and his voice are not in good condition. It will be interesting to see Schaefer and Hurst mix things with the English language. A reproduction of the conversation would make fine stuff for the vaudeville stage or a phonograph.

Murphy offered $10,000 to his crew if they would capture the pennant. Thanks to a baseball technicality, they won. Then Charles failed to come through. The National Commission called his bluff and demanded that he scatter the ten thousand beans as promised. And the Cub figurehead, seeing he was in Joseph, tried to crawl. But Pulliam went him one better and is now calling his bluff.

NELSON LOOKS FOR A FIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13.—The following dispatch was received from Battling Nelson:

"Fort Worth, Texas, Feb. 11, 1909.—H. W. Walker, Sporting Editor, Los Angeles:

"Met one of those so-called champions at Fort Worth in a friendly three-round exhibition and because I treated him so gently for the first two rounds he tried to show the crowd, which numbered about 1,000, that he was a sure enough champion.

"I just sailed in and gently slipped that left half-scissors hook of mine to his liver and 'Mr. Wise, Texas Champion,' Pete Shaughnessy, doubled up and got sick in the 'tummy.' I slipped to the footlights after the affair was over and told the crowd that I had intended to box a friendly exhibition, but as Pete got away and invited trouble I was compelled to show him just a little 'of the stuff that made me undisputed lightweight champion of the world.' Slugging—that's all.

"I am on my way to San Francisco and may close for a fight if the promoters can get a suitable opening. Welsh or McFarland preferred.

"BATTLING NELSON.
"Lightweight champion of the world."

HORSE NEWS TRACK GOSSIP

Mart Demarest is in California following the runners.

Allerton (2:09¼) is being extensively patronized in his new Iowa home.

Trainer Ed Bither is hopeful of driving Peter B. Bradley's Border Knight to a record inside 2:10.

The old warhorse, Eph Cinders (2:05¾), is quartered at Meadville, Pa., along with Captor (2:09¾).

The runners (and, incidentally, the trotters) got another swat in California, when that State joined the no-betting column.

Ed Parker, who is located at Pleasanton, Cal., has in his stable a promising green pacing mare, by Joe Patchen (2:01¼).

J. S. McElwain, proprietor of McElwain Stock Farm, home of The Peer (2:15¾), Holyoke, Mass., is spending the Winter in Florida.

Bonnie Direct (4) (2:05¾), that is now owned in Indiana, is proving popular with the breeders in that section, and is being well patronized.

A young brother of Tiverton (2:04½), owned in Iowa, is credited with showing promise of being some day not the least of his family relatives.

Owners of hoppled pacers and others interested in them will have quite a task looking them up in Volume 24 of the Year Book when it comes out.

Harry Fleming is wintering about a score of youngsters, mainly the get of the Upland Farm stallion, Major Higginson (2:10¾) at Greensburg, Pa.

Gulf Coast, a green Ohio pacer that is in Harrie Jones's stable at Rushville, Ind., is charged with a mile in 2:05½, and is looked upon to be one of the season's stars.

The Carroll Brothers of South Boston will train their fast young stallion Silver Baron, that last season trotted in 2:08¾, as a three-year-old, and will stake him down the line and point him for the big handicap at Columbus.

Independent Boy, a pacer that has raced some over the Charles River Speedway, ran away in Somerville and in a head-on collision with an express train was instantly killed. He was owned by A. J. Nelson.

Charles Sanders says that while he appreciates that $15,000 is not to be sneezed at, yet, he says, even $25,000 would not tempt him to part with Uhlan (4) (2:07¾). It is a trait of Mr. S.'s not to part with any of his horses, and he has quite a horse cemetery on his farm at Salem, Mass.

George D. Merrill of Cambridge has invented a key and attachment for a scalper which is sure to come into universal use if horsemen appreciate a contrivance which won't wear out and cannot come off. It consists of an iron spur, which comes though the scalper hole, on the end of which is a small eye. Into this the steel is riveted to the scalper hooks in such a manner that to become loose or detached is impossible.

TANK EXPERTS GIVE VIEWS.

Someone has now started a fuss about swimming pools and the temperature of the water thereof. Also the temperature of the air surrounding. Four experts in the East have decided that the water in the pool should register 75 degrees above zero and that the air should be 80 degrees above.

John L. Sullivan's Column

Before many hours I expect to have a meeting with Jeffries when we will talk over the offer of a $75,000 purse which I made for a fight between the retired champion and Jack Johnson. Then I will have fulfilled my mission to the coast and will be in a better positon to tell the fans all over the country just how Jeffries feels about his own position in regard to fighting Johnson as the reports that have gone out broadcast have only left the matter in the dark.

I have every confidence of getting Jeffries to accept the offer I will make him, but Jeff has a mind of his own that he has shown on different occasions, yet the evasive way in which he has answered all questions regarding his entering the ring again was convincive enough that he was willing if his condition would allow.

Jeff cannot go back of the statement he made before Johnson became champion, that he would fight if an outsider ever won the title, and if Johnson cannot be considered in that class, then I am greatly mistaken.

Jeffries did not specify whether it was foreign nationality or foreign color, but I don't think he will quibble words on the subject and he won't be able to refuse the people who come to see him on his theatrical tour in the East, as the pleadings will be too strong for the big-hearted alfalfa king.

I have it from a good source that Jack Johnson will be in Frisco by St. Patrick's Day, as he sails from Brisbane, Australia, on February 17, and Jim Coffroths expects introduce him as his holiday show as the latest champion of the world. That will be the time when the Burns destroyer will be in front of the public and what he says on the occasion will be interesting reading.

As Jeff will be on the Atlantic coast by that time Johnson need have no fear of precipitating a riot or an open challenge from the ex-boiler maker and may go as far as he likes.

John L. Sullivan—

Dear Sir: Please tell me if Longboat led all the way when he won the Marathon race from Ashland to Boston after he left South Framingham, and when did he take the lead?

Dear Sir: A bets that Jack Johnson punched the bag at Walker's Museum, Bowdoin square, Boston. B bets he did not punch the bag in any museum. Who wins? J. A. C.

John L. Sullivan—

Dear Sir: Who was the greatest big American fighter we ever had outside of Jim Jeffries?

"THAT" QUARTETTE, Gaiety Theatre.

There is only one answer to this question, but you will never learn the truth from me, as I am getting modest in my old age.

HOLY TRINITY IN BIG GAME.

One of the best basketball games of the season is expected Monday evening, when the undefeated Holy Trinity A. A. clash with the strnog Wollaston A. A. at Casino Hall, Shawmut avenue. The Holy Trinity A. A. have won twelve straight games this season, having beaten the best teams around Boston in their class. They would like to arrange games with fast 125-pound teams around Boston at home on Monday evenings. C. H. F. Mueller, No. 35 Marcella street, Roxbury, Mass.

WILL RUN MARATHON.

John F. Tilly of Lawrence, Mass., who finished well up in the BOSTON AMERICAN Marathon run, will enter the Outlet Marathon at Providence on February 22 and expects to be among the prize winners.

BIG ATHLETES MEET TONIGHT

The final big indoor open track meet of the season comes to-night when the Lawrence Light Guards holds its annual tournament at the armory in Medford.

The best athletes in this section of the country will compete and the card will furnish a lot of sport for the lovers of running and jumping.

Besides the regular events there are thirteen relay races on the programme between the leading schools, while the big noise among the colleges will be the clash when M. I. T. tackles Tufts.

Harvard will send several of its best athletes to appear in the different events, while the top interscholastic stars will show their paces, it being the last opportunity before they test their ability in the scholastic championships on February 27.

One of the big attractions and one which has created great local interest is the wrestling match between Paul Withington, the Harvard football player, and Arthur Mather of the Medford Boat Club, for the heavyweight championship of New England. Withington is the holder of the title. The team races arranged are:

Mechanic Arts High v. Roxbury Latin; Fort Warren v. Lawrence Light Guards; Rindge v. Unknown.

Stone School v. All-Worcester High Schools; English High v. Cambridge Latin; Brookline Gym. A. A. v. Volkmann School; Cambridgeport Gym. v. Brookline A. C.

Technology v. Tufts; Newton Y. M. C. A. v. Lynn Y. M. C. A.; Cathedral A. A. v. Cabot Street Gym.

Team races—Cambridge Y. M. C. A. v. Somerville Y. M. C. A.; Boston Latin v. Boston College High; Malden High v. Medford High.

BOWLING ALLEY GOSSIP

Were Callahan to get his stride like last year it would take a weight from the mind of Bean. Ain't it awful, Jimmie?

Brown of Natick is wearing a big, big grin these days. It is through getting that high score of 135. Can it last the season out?

If Jimmie Bean doesn't take a care that Cambridge five of his will capture the "booby" prize. To date it has been a warm session with Somerville for the tail end of the line.

Just when it looked like clear sailing for the B. A. A. five along came the Commercials and took their goat for three out of four points. It was ever thus—good things going wrong.

In the couple of weeks' rest Captain Henry Barry has his Boston team in rare condition for the game with Lynn in this city next Monday night. He is strong for leading the second five teams in the Elks' League.

Where in the world can Frank Whitney be these recent matches? The genial Medford rooter is greatly missed. Don't give up the ship, Frank, because the boys have been doing bushy work.

The second annual banquet of the Elks will be held at the Hotel Napoli on Monday evening, April 12. "Cap" Walter W. Noyes is chairman of the committee having the affair in charge. "Bigger and Better than the first," are his words.

George Barr of Waltham is sitting up nights figuring for second position at least in the league. He gave "Stoney" a strong backyard talk the other night, illustrated to Mack the correct way of getting in one-pin spares and then won one string from Lynn.

Melrose is a wonderful little city for turning out winners, champions in all callings being quite common out there. The latest to spring to light is Bishop, with a three-string total of 338, the best to date in the Y. M. C. A. League.

Elstrom of the Regal City League and the Orients in the North Shore League has certainly one big appetite. For full particulars ask John Sullivan. Within three weeks he has gained thirty-one pounds and eight ounces. He now weighs 141 pounds. His rolling is getting better each week, his average being 86 41-64.

Old Master Only Bars Bat Nelson

GANS SEEKS TROUBLE

By TAD.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Joe Gans has posted $1,000 to go as a side bet for any lightweight in the country, barring Battling Nelson.

"I'm not looking for the championship," said the old master as he crossed his feet and took a long breath, "and I don't see why it is that none of these fellows will box me. They all want to be champions and they surely should lick me first. I'll take on Cross or this English fellow, Jabez White, or I'll take Driscoll if he'll agree to the same terms he gave Cross."

Joe then turned his attention to a bunch of photos that were lying on the desk. They consisted of ball players, autos and prize fighters. He turned a few autos, then a picture of Hal Chase and lifting up the next dropped it as though it were a hot brick. "Gee, that's a hot one!" piped Joe as the photo of Battling Nelson dropped to the floor. "I don't even want to be near a photo of that man."

Jack "Twin" Sullivan came down from Beantown to spill some fight chatter. He wants to meet the winner of the Joe Thomas-Hugo Kelly go which is carded for the Fairmount Club.

THAT'S WHAT THEY ALL SAY.

Schenectady, N. Y., Feb. 11.

Tad, Evening Journal, N. Y.:

Please state for me that I have not retired from the ring. I am better than ever. I beat Moll Bowser a mile. YOUNG CORBETT.

Last night the writer wired Abe Attell asking him whether he was going to fight Jem Driscoll on next Thursday or not. It was generally supposed that the go was as good as on, but the champion had been so quiet we wanted to know.

In answer to our wire Abe said:

"Will be at your office Saturday morning to accept best offer, 18th or 19th."

There's not much nourishment in that, however, as it would leave Driscoll but three days to train in and keep him worried until it was fixed up. Billy Gibson wired back immediately, saying that he must know now or never, and we are waiting for Abey.

The idea of Kaufmann and Jeff fighting for the world's championship is a hit. Both have drawn the color line, and as a colored man is the champ we fail to see where they get in on the deal.

Tell it to Sweeney, Delaney.

$200,000 BID FOR FIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—Big Jim Jeffries appeared at two performances at a local theatre here yesterday. Tiv Kreling was there to look the new vaudeville star over, and many remarks were passed regarding Jeffries's changed appearance. He has grown quite a bit lighter since doing his daily training stunts. Shortly after he arrived here he received the following telegram:

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 12.—J. J. Jeffries, care Wigwam Theatre, San Francisco:

Two hundred thousand dollars to fight Johnson at Alaska-Yukon Pacific exposition. Will you accept?

JOHN C. BARRETT.

SETTLEMENT TEAMS PLAY.

The first set of junior and senior basketball games in the Boston Athletic League, composed of settlement teams, will take place to-night at the English High Gymnasium at 8 o'clock.

The senior games are: South End House vs. Ruggles Street Neighborhood House, Ellis Memorial Club vs. Roxbury League, Roxbury Neighborhood House vs. Hale House. The junior series will be: Hale House vs. Dennison House, Roxbury Neighberhood House vs. South End House, Roxbury League vs. Ruggles Street Neighborhood House.

DESHLER SAYS HE WILL WIN

Dave Deshler, the Cambridge boxer thinks his cleverness and stinging punches will be too much for Tommy Quill when he faces the Brocktonite at the Armory A. A. next Tuesday night.

He practically forced the Brockton lad to make the match. He trained with Quill for a few days some time ago, and in one of their workouts the boys got going in earnest with the result that they parted company. He feels that he has the shoemaker's "goat." This made Quill just as eager to settle the matter and he agreed to take on the Cambridge lightweight.

Billy Rolfe, the South Boston favorite, faces the hardest proposition that he has ever tackled. His opponent Johnny Carroll, the "Brooklyn Knockerout", can hit like a heavyweight. He knocked Fred Bradley cold in three rounds at Chelsea a little over a year ago. He also knocked out Sailor Burke. It only took him one round to dispose of the Sailor. Everybody knows that Sailor Burke can go some, as he recently proved when he defeated Joe Thomas at the Armory A. A.

The contest between Porky Flynn and Cleve Hawkins should be the best opener ever witnessed at the Club. They are a pair of willing, aggressive sluggers who carry a knockout in either hand. It is doubtful if this bout will go the limit.

SPORTING NEWS IN BRIEF.

The winner's time was 2:46:52 3-5.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—In the final game of a three night's match at three-cushion carom billiards, Alfred De Oro, the world's champion, successfully defended his title against Horace B. Lean of St. Louis. The total score of the contest was De Oro 150, Lean 103. Lean was not satisfied at the result and immediately challenged De Oro for another match for $500 a side under the same conditions. The games will be played in Boston on March 1, 2 and 3.

ATLANTA, Feb. 13.—Bobby Walthour won by three laps in his race to-night for twenty miles with Jimmy Moran of Chelsea at the Veldrome at Ponce de Leon Park. Time, 33m. 37s. In the five-mile sprint Fogler won, Root second, Willie third. Time, 11m. 22 1-5s. There was a motor race between Lawson and Turville, which Lawson won by seventy-three yards. Time, 2m. 11s.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Sailor Burke knocked out James J. MacSherry in the first round of their scheduled ten-round bout at the National A. C. MacSherry, one time boxing instructor at Yale, showed in the two minutes and thirty seconds he was in the ring with Burke that he knew almost nothing about scrapping. Dr. Creamer worked over MacSherry for five minutes and finally brought him around.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 13.—Johnny Lynch, the Boston lightweight and Young Willie Jones of Brooklyn met in a ten-round draw at the Royal A. C.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

FILMS SHOW BURNS AGGRESSOR IN BOUT

(Special Cable to Boston American.)

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The films of the Burns-Johnson fight at Sydney, Australia, December 26 last, were shown for the first time to-day to the AMERICAN correspondent at the National Sporting Club. The exhibition has greatly boosted the stock of Sam Langford, who will meet the heavyweight champion here in the near future. The films are most clear, indeed the very best that have ever been seen here. Every blow may be distinctly followed. The sunny smile of Johnson is everywhere evident. Even the movements of his lips as he chaffed Burns are plainly visible.

Still it was the consensus of expert opinion that the fight was a most wretched affair from every standpoint. It is believed that it would not have gone more than ten rounds in England owing to the constant clinching and holding. Contrary to reports from Australia, Johnson did not stand off and fight as has been believed. He always kept at close quarters, and indeed was most rough at this style. It was in the clinches that the negro got in his most damaging blows.

Burns was always the aggressor and always outboxed Johnson. But he played into his man's hands from the very start. The Canadian foolishly tried to match his strength and weight against that of the colored fighter. He would come to close quarters and slug away, toe to toe. It seemed as if the "kidding" of Johnson made Burns so furious that he lost all judgment.

Burns Looked Strong at End.

There seems some mystery as to why the fight should have been stopped. Despite the knockdown in the fourteenth round Burns seemed strong and able to continue. Referee McIntosh, here, however, claims that the Canadian could not possibly have lasted another round. He says, as the pictures show, that Johnson could not land at long range, but that he simply "ripped him up" every time Burns would close with him.

Now as to Langford. It is believed here that Sam is a far abler boxer than Johnson, according to what the films show. If Sam will not adopt Burns's style, but stands off and boxes, it is believed he will be able to overcome the handicap of weight and reach. That Langford has the punch is well known. If Burns could stay fourteen rounds with Johnson, it is believed Langford will stick the limit of twenty.

After looking at the films, Jimmy Britt said:

"It was Johnsons's size and weight that made his victory possible. Certainly it was not his ability. I do not hesitate to state that if Jeffries is half as good as he was when he retired, he will beat Johnson easily. These pictures will convince the American public that Jeffries need not fear Johnson if he decides to re-enter the ring."

JOHNSON SAYS HE WILL FIRST MEET LANGFORD

MELBOURNE, Feb. 13.—Jack Johnson will sail from Sydney next Monday for Vancouver. He says he is willing to meet Jeff, Burns or any one if proper inducements are made.

A fight for the championship, however, must be deferred for some months, for it is Johnson's purpose first to fulfil a theatrical engagement in London and then to take part in a limited round bout before the National Sporting Club in that city with Sam Langford.

"I will do no boxing or other business in the United States when I arrive there, and I have given no authority for the statement that has been published that I will then fight Stanley Ketchel," Johnson said. "I understand that Jeffries had definitely said that he never again would re-enter the ring. If, however, Jeffries has decided to accept the purse of $75,000 offered by Sam Allen of Melbourne for a match in Australia with me, I am willing to return here in twelve months' time and give him a chance to win the title he once held.

"I have arranged to reach London the first week in April, and probably immediately will commence my music hall engagements. The contest between Langford and myself before the National Sporting Club has been provisionally fixed for Derby night, but the date will not be definitely determined until I arrive in London. I am out for business all the time, as the people of England will find out when I reach there."

SAYS DORANDO IGNORES HAYES

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Charles Harvey, manager of Johnny Hayes, says: "Harry Pollock states that Johnny Hayes has had opportunities to race Dorando and has failed to take advantage of them. In truth and fairness we must admit that such offers were made some time ago, but that Hayes was in no condition to enter a race of any kind, least of all with men of Dorando's calibre. Since then, however, efforts have been made repeatedly to get the Italian into a match agreement, but Dorando has absolutely refused to meet Hayes, though he has been willing to race any one else.

"Pollock now says he can race Dorando, winner take all. To me this is not a fair proposition. If I wanted to make a bet or gamble we should be given better than even money for our wager, and for that reason it would be foolish to accept such a proposition as Pollock names. We are anxious to make a match and we will place no obstacles in the way of one. If Dorando will agree to meet Hayes at the Marathon distance he will find us ready and willing to make equitable terms. Hayes has beaten Dorando once and the latter has turned the tables, which leaves matters on an even basis. He has no more right to dictate to us than we have to dictate to him."

TIGERS BUSY IN THE TANK

PRINCETON, Feb. 13.—Interest in swimming has taken marked strides in the last two years, and perhaps there is more enthusiasm this Winter than ever before because of the brilliant prospects.

Captain Chambers himself holds the intercollegiate 100-yard record, while Denniston, holder of the intercollegiate fifty-yard record of 26 2-5 seconds, recently created a sensation by swimming the distance in 25 1-5 seconds in an interclass meet.

On the strength of this performance the Tiger swimmer challenged Daniels to swim fifty yards at Princeton. The New Yorker has accepted, but the date has not yet been decided.

Princeton's weak point is in the long-distance events; but three or four men are working up the 220-yard, and with the coaching of L. de B. Handley of the New York A. C., some good material should be developed.

The relay team will be a strong one, with Chambers, Denniston, Bamman, captain of the water polo team, and probably Dawson as the fourth man.

Parke, Dowd and Vezin are the fancy divers, and Woehr, substitute on the football eleven, is doing some creditable plunging.

The first meet of the season is with Columbia Saturday, February 20. The remainder of the schedule follows:

February 27—Harvard, at Princeton.
March 6—Yale at Princeton.
March 13—C. C. N. Y., at New York.
March 20—Pennsylvania, at Princeton.
March 27—Intercollegiates, at New York.

HORSEMEN ARE GETTING READY

By ED. COGSWELL.

Among the amateur speedway and matinee horsemen the looking for Spring has already begun, as numerous changes and improvements are on the card. Down at Lynn the Driving Club intends building about twenty new stalls at Rockdale Park, while the track itself will be made much faster than ever before.

In the past season the club bought the property. So successful were the matinees that the money was expended in fixing the grandstand, stables, etc., was paid with an additional six per cent. on the bonds.

It is the object of the club in the near future, say another year from now, to erect at the park a comfortable clubhouse, to be kept open throughout the entire twelve months.

Buying New Racers.

Many of the members are buying new horses. William La Croix has purchased the fast trotter Fanny B., which did so well at the races last season. This mare, with The Sailorman, 2:20¼, will make a couple of useful speedway and matinee performers for their owner. It is good news that Mr La Croix has changed his mind since the Fall about forsaking the light harness horse. His loss to the sport would be far too much.

George Cokeley, another enthusiast of Lynn, has bought of Jimmy Fitzgerald of East Boston the pacer Ijams, 2:21¼, that was raced last Fall at the Charles River Speedway.

Eben B. Phillips has his sails out to capture a futurity. He owns a couple of royally-bred youngsters that should do to tell the story. Dextry is a three-year-old by Moko, out of the dam of The General, 2:11¼, while May Cliffe, a year younger, is by Walnut Hall, 2:08¼, out of a mare by Moko. Each are entered in upwards of $60,000 worth of futurity engagements.

At the Fellsway Driving Club headquarters it is learned that, while every effort is being made in making their lease of Combination Park a paying venture, yet the social part of the organization this Winter will not be neglected. On the evening of February 22 will be held in Columbia Hall a ladies' night. It will really be the leading social event of the season in Somerville.

President J. I. Brooks has sold his veteran trotter Sir George to a party living in Maine. The name and address cannot be published, as the buyer wished it kept dark, he having an idea that he can skin some of his neighbors.

In the place of the trotting gelding Mr. Brooks has bought the pacing mare Decima Deane, 2:14¼. This is a very fast proposition, as in the fourth heat over a half-mile track she made The Bishop step in 2:11¼ to get the money.

Old Colony Club Busy.

Harry C. Thayer, vice-president of the Old Colony Driving Club, says that money is being spent in bettering the track and plant at South Weymouth. He counts the coming season will be the best in amateur racing history.

Over at the Metropolitan Driving Club a new flooring has been laid in the clubhouse for the semi-monthly socials and dances. Besides this there are many other improvements under way. The horse show ring, located on the opposite side of the speedway, is nearly completed. Early in the season one of the best out-door horse shows will be held, which is now exciting widespread interest among the members.

The Dorchester Driving Club is after a roof on its speedway grandstand, and to have the speedway lengthened to three-eighths of a mile. Its weekly socials and stags have attracted more notice this Winter than before.

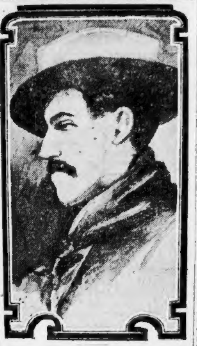
ARMOUR JUDGES QUICKLY.

"Bill" Armour went to Tecumseh last fall to take a look at Webster, first baseman of the Bay City team. While he was waiting, Saginaw came along and a young fellow went out to warm up. The youngster was the object of Armour's gaze as soon as he walked on the field. He put one ball over, and it delighted Armour. Then came another delivered well, curving beautifully, cutting the plate square. "He goes to Toledo," said Armour to himself. He found the youngster's name was "Zeke" Holmquist and he hired him.

SHERRING-LONGBOAT RACE.

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 12.—Will Sherring of Hamilton, who won the Marathon at Athens two years ago, will be Tom Longboat's next opponent at the Marathon distance, according to Tom Flanagan, who returned from New York yesterday. Tom Longboat was expected on the same train and several thousand persons were on hand to greet him, but he and his bride will stay in New York some days longer. Flanagan says the next meeting between Longboat and Shrubb will be in Buffalo or Toronto at 15 miles. It will take place about March 25.

THOMAS H. RYAN, WHOM 3 WOMEN CLAIM AS HUSBAND



WIFE NO. 1 TO BRING CHARGE AGAINST RYAN

Mrs. Margaret M. McDermott of No. 1,064 Cambridge street, Cambridge, who claims to be the first of the three wives of Thomas H. Ryan, now being held on charges of larceny, perjury and polygamy, to-day declared that he would have to answer to the additional charges of nonsupport and desertion.

Mrs. McDermott declares that he is a bogus Spanish War Veteran. "He volunteered at the outbreak of the Spanish war, but was rejected," said Mrs. McDermott. "Then he bought a uniform and posed as a veteran."

Mrs. McDermott's story of her marriage to Ryan is as follows:

First Wife's Story.

"I was married to Thomas H. Ryan in St. Joseph's Church, Somerville, by Rev. Michael J. Walsh on October 24, 1898. Ryan obtained the marriage license without my knowledge and fixed it up to suit himself. He gave London as my birthplace, whereas I was born in Halifax of English parents.

"In the latter part of 1899 he was arrested for the larceny of a horse and wagon, for which he served three months in the House of Correction in East Cambridge. During the time he was in jail I supported myself.

"At the time we were married Ryan in the license gave as his occupation that he was a chemist. I afterward learned that this claim was based on the fact that he was doing porter work for a druggist firm on Merrimac street in Boston.

Left Home and Never Returned.

"At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, in 1898, Ryan volunteered. He was rejected in the medical examination. Still he bought a uniform and measured as a veteran.

"Our only son died in July, 1900, at the age of 10 months.

"Up until 1902 our married life might be called all that could be desired. In June of that year Ryan left our home never to return."

The other two women in the case are Mrs Mabel McGeehan-Ryan of No. 21 Sherman street, Brighton, and Mrs. Bertha Siebert-Ryan of No. 8 Smith street, Roxbury. The second wife declared that she was married to Ryan on March 3, 1908. The third wife stated that she was married to Ryan on February 1 of this year.

While courting his third wife, Ryan masqueraded as a police officer. It was to secure an engagement ring for this third wife that he wrote to his affianced's uncle, Christopher Kuenzel, a jeweller of Springfield, asking for some rings to be sent to him.

SIX BURIED IN FLOOD RUINS

PASADENA, Cal., Feb. 13.—Following a cloudburst in Rubio canyon, above Pasadena, a terrific flood of water came down the narrow canyon, overturning the Rubio pavilion into the ravine and burying Fred T. Drew, agent of the Pacific Electric Railroad, and his wife and four children in the ruins.

Drew was rescued, severely injured, and three children were taken from the ruins slightly hurt. Mrs. Drew and the other children are still in the ruins.

AMATEUR ACTORS OF ALL VARIETIES

Amateurs of all ages and all varieties, from the college youth to the street arab, and from the dignified society dame to the humblest school girl, made their debut in the amateur bill at the Columbia last night and as usual the "comedian" brand predominated.

Judging by the Columbia amateur events there will be no dearth of "comedians" on the market when these young men get their proper stride, but it will be many years before they will be quite ripe.

One youth, about six feet tall, in describing his experience said he felt as if his knees were going back on him and that there were two million people in the house, but the hook came to his rescue.

Of the favorites of the evening Mason and Lee were easily the first in landing prizes and first in the estimation of the crowd. The pair did some great comedy stunts as well as contributing clever feats of strength. Sam Blackman was the winner of the second prize. Annie Hickey and Helen Melville were also well remembered.

SEATS SCARCE FOR INAUGURAL PARADE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—So many applications have been received by the inaugural committee for seats in the great stand, which seats 6,000 persons, and which is directly opposite the point where the President will review the parade March 4 after he has been inaugurated, that the committee does not know how to apportion the applications.

Seats in the great stand are sold for $3, $4 and $5. Applications for reservation of seats have come in so fast in the last few days that the committee has not been able to keep record of them, and there are three or four applications for every seat.

M'GREGOR IN TALK PRAISES LINCOLN'S LIFE

In an address on Lincoln delivered at a meeting of the Intercolonial Club on Dudley street, Alexander McGregor, former president of the Scots' Charitable Society, declared that if Lincoln were alive to-day he would hold out his hand in friendly greeting and in warm welcome to the Japanese.

Mr McGregor said:

"One hundred years ago to-night Abraham Lincoln was born. Orators and writers the country over unite in extolling his deeds, lauding his virtues, exalting his character and eulogizing his patriotism, sacrifice and unswerving fidelity to duty, and people everywhere love him for his plain common sense, even temper, abounding good nature and unique humor.

"In its merciless, yet righteous manner, Time winnows the wheat from the chaff, the false from the true, the real from the seeming, and renders exact judgment to all. The 'savior of his country' is now spoken of only with reverence and infinite tenderness. His patience, tact, knowledge, eloquence, statecraft are never ending themes for oratory. Throughout the length and breadth of this entire country there lives no detractor of Abraham Lincoln. This is as it should be. Time has furnished the proper perspective and we see the real Lincoln as he will historically be seen.

The Living Lincoln.

"But look back, my friends, and recall the living Lincoln. Was there ever (save one) a man of greater sorrows? Sorrow stamped him as her own from birth. Oh, the pathos of that boyhood, early manhood and death. On him was laid the sorrows, griefs, sufferings and tragedies of a nation at war with itself. When he was most heroic, when he was at the zenith of his power, doing his utmost to make men free, was he not the scorned of scorned, a target for epithet, insult, gibe, affront and outrage? Scorned by the South, ridiculed by the North, betrayed by friends, questioned by all, this paragon of men kept serenely on his chosen way, "with malice toward none, charity toward all." Confident in his ability to lead, with sublime faith in his own and his country's destiny, he knew he was right and kept straight ahead, and now, all the world knows and admits that he was right, that he was wise, that he was heroic; ay! that he was godlike.

"It is easy to surmise what stand Lincoln would take if confronted by the Japanese question or problem of to-day. As was to be expected of a man of his calibre, he was broad-minded, tolerant, of unbounded sympathy, free from bigotry of all kinds, and he could no more discriminate against a man because of his color, race or condition than he could alter his opinions because it was expedient. Born in lowly station, democratic in all his ways, he had a natural sympathy along the line with the down-trodden and oppressed, and a profound admiration for those that worked out their own destinies and got to the top.

Friend to Japs.

"His great heart would have rejoiced in the uplifting of the Japanese race and his friendly hand gone out in recognition of their entry into the "great nation" class. No one would have been keener than he to appreciate their marvellous development as a race, their indomitable pluck, splendid manhood, masterly activities and exhalted ideas of personal liberty. As America has a free field in Japan for individual effort, so would he have extended the same to the Japanese in America, and especially so when provided for by treaty rights. It is a shame and disgrace in this twentieth century that this great nation of ours should be stirred up by a small portion of our people, who would blindly disregard treaty rights, discriminate on account of race and shut out the Japanese because, forsooth, they were unable to hold their own against them. In a fair field and no favor asked or given, the people of the Pacific Coast that take this attitude should be allowed to go to the wall, commercially, if unable to compete with the indefatigable, industrious and aggressive little brown brother.

"It is the old question of the survival of the fittest, and the time has gone by when this nation, that has taken its place in the family of great nations, should any longer coddle any portion of its people. We are out of the nursery and must show the manhood that is in us and fight like men.

Lesson for Nation.

"Now my friends, these two points I wish to make and emphasize; Lincoln's suffering and embarrassment while President will have measurably been in vain unless we, as a nation and individuals, show an earnest determination not to mete out the same course of treatment to another that was meted out to him. When the chosen of the people is conscientiously and earnestly laboring for the welfare of all, let us rally about him, hold up his hands and never again have repeated the Lincoln treatment. That is the kind of tribute the great emancipator would have preferred—deeds, not words, was his demand.

"Meaningless are the great principles he enunciated, spiritless the tenets he upheld, lifeless the golden rule he so loved to follow, when we are guilty of anti-Japanese legislation, and remain supine when similar principle destroying legislation is enacted.

"Let us praise Lincoln less and see to it "that his work goes marching on." The greatest legacy of a nation is the record of its great and true men; for, though dead, they still speak, and the high standards they stood for will raise the nation up—not pull it down."

MAY UNSEAT COOPER JURY

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 13.—Interest in the Cooper-Sharp murder trial to-day turned to Prosecutor McCarn. Judge Hart announced he would hear statements from the State's attorney regarding intimations made by him that he had evidence which might result in two of the members of the completed jury being unseated.

The talesmen who had not been examined reappeared in court to-day, it being the intention of the Court that in case any members were unseated, that the examination of veniremen could proceed at once. It was expected evidence would begin Monday, but the new tangle of the case by the State's attorney promises a delay.

A new eye witness is W. H. Brey, a banker of Senath, Mo. Brey is said to have been near the scene of the tragedy.

SWEARING MUST STOP.

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 13.—The bill introduced by Representative Vaughan, making it a criminal offence to swear over a telephone, was reported favorably by the House Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence.

'THE BARRIER' —By— REX BEACH

Copyright, 1908, Harper & Bro.

CHAPTER XIII.—Continued

FOLLOWING his discoverey of her identity, he had been stricken dumb, staring at her like one demented; then, as he was about to explain, his mind suddenly grasped the significance of this revelation and the advantage it gave him over his enemies; a plan began to unfold, vague at first, its details not worked out, but a plan whereby he could by keeping silent use this knowledge to serve his vengeful ends.

In an instant his vision cleared and his brain became alive and alert, like that of a man brought suddenly under the stimulus of strong liquor. Care must be exercised—she must not learn too much—for if she suspected the truth she would go to her soldier lover at once, and no power on earth could hold her back. That would block the vengeance that he saw shaping in the dank recesses of his distorted brain.

First, and above all, he must get the girl away from Flambeau.

"I went clear off my head," he heard himself saying, "at that name of Merridy, that ring, and all. Why—why, I thought you might be the missing girl I told you of—you remember, that day up on Lee's Creek—so I had to see; but, dear me, I should have been more considerate—I should have explained. The trouble is I'm a nervous man, and I get impulsive streaks on me sometimes that I can't control. I'm sorry I spoiled your dress, but I'll get you another—you bet I will."

This explanation of his strange behavior seemed plausible enough to banish all personal fears from Necia's mind. Indeed Stark had now become so gentle and apologetic in his demeanor that her woman's curiosity overcame her instinct to flee, and she ventured the question:

"So you really thought I was that other girl?"

"I did for a minute. The mother was a —a—friend of mine, and so—I lost my head. But I'm all right now, and if you'll overlook my roughness we'll go back to your troubles."

These last few moments had driven her own worries from her mind, but he was bent on recalling them, and so continued, cautiously:

"You were saying that you thought you'd go away. I think that's a good plan, and you'd be wise to do it for more reasons than one. It will give you time to think it all over and know your own mind——"

"I know my mind now, and yet—I don't want to go away."

"—and it will give Burrell a chance to prove himself. He'll either show that he has got to have you at any cost, or that you are right in your decision. If the first should happen, you can come back to him; if the last—why, it will be better for you, anyhow. As long as you stay here neither one of you can see clearly."

She was touched by his interest, and realized the force of his argument, which, strange to say, seemed to second her own thoughts; yet she hesitated.

"I want to help you—I'm going to help you—because I've got an interest in you like you were mine." Again he betrayed that strange, mirthless amusement.

"There is no place for me to go," said Necia, blankly, "except the Mission, and I have no way of getting there."

"Don't you worry. I'll furnish the means, and you'd better go to-night"—she flinched—"yes, to-night; there's no use prolonging the agony. I'll get a boat ready and send a trusty man with you. The current is swift, and if he rows well you can make it by to-morrow evening. That's only one night out, and I'll put some blankets aboard so you can wrap up and have a sleep."

"I feel as if I'd never sleep again," she sighed.

"Now, now, this will come out all right yet. I'd take you down there myself, but I've got to stay here. I've got work to do. Yes, I've sure got work of importance ahead of me."

"I must go back and get some clothes," she said. At which he would have demurred had he not seen that she could not travel in her present condition.

"Very well. But don't let anybody see you."

"Of course not."

"It's getting late, and your folks will be afraid." He looked at his watch. "Midnight! Be here in an hour, and I'll have the skiff ready."

The light of sacrifice was in Necia's eyes, and her cheeks were blanched with the pallor of a great resolution. She did not stop to reason why or how she had been led to this disposal of her future, but clutched desperately at Stark's plan of rescue from her agonizing predicament.

"I'll be here in an hour," she said, simply.

He let her out, closed the door after her, and locked it; then, drawing a deep breath, he raised his clenched hands above his head, and gave a great sigh of exultation. Next he took out his six-shooter and examined it carefully. The shells did not suit him, so he filled the gun with new ones, loosened the three lower buttons of his vest, and slid the weapon inside his trousers band; then, facing the direction of Gale's trading post, he spoke aloud.

"I was a long time coming, Gaylord, but I'm here, and I've got you where I've wanted you these fifteen years—yes, and I've got you, too, Burrell! By God, this is my night!"

His lithe body became panther-like in poise, his bearing that of the meat-eating animal, and his face set in a fierce, exultant cruelty as he blew out his light and letf the cabin.

CHAPTER XIV.

A Mystery Is Unravelled

LIEUTENANT BURRELL was considerably taken aback when, a quarter of an hour after the young lover's ecstatic return to his quarters, Gale knocked at his door, for the trader's visit, coupled with the late hour and his sombre countenance, forecast new complications.

"He's here to object, but it won't go," thought the Lieutenant, as he made his visitor welcome.

It was the trader's first glimpse of the officer's quarters, and he cast a roving eye over the room, as if measuring the owner's character by his surroundings.

"I've got to have a long talk with you, Burrell," he began, with an effort. "It's liable to take me an hour or two."

"Then take this chair and be comfortable."

Meade swung his big reading chair out beneath the hanging lamp, and, going to the sideboard, brought back a bottle, some glasses, and a pouch of tobacco. Noting the old man's sigh of fatigue as he sat himself down heavily, he remarked, sympathetically:

"Mr. Gale, you've made a long trip to-day, and you must be tired. If this talk is to be as lengthy as you say, why not have a drink with me now, and postpone it until to-morrow?"

"I've been tired for eighteen years," the other replied; "to-night I hope to get rested."

He lapsed into silence, watching his host pour out two glasses of liquor, fill his pipe, and then stretch himself out contentedly, his feet resting on another chair—a picture of youthful strength, vitality and determination. Beneath the Lieutenant's flannel shirt the long, slim muscles showed free and full, and the firm set of jaw and lip denoted himself for a moment jealously regarding the youth and his enviable state of contentment and decision.

"Well, let's get at it," the younger man finally said.

"I suppose you'll want to interrupt and question me a heap, but I'll ask you to let me tell this story the way it comes to me; till I get it out, then we can go back and take up the queer stuff. It runs back eighteen or twenty years, and, being as it's part of a hidden life, it isn't easy to tell. You'll be the first one to hear it, and I reckon you're enough like other men to disbelieve—you're not old enough, and you haven't knocked around enough to learn that nothing is impossible. Likewise, you'll want to know what all this has to do with you and Necia—yes, she told me about you and her, and that's why I'm here." He paused. "You really think you love her, do you?"

Burrell removed his pipe and gazed at its coal impersonally.

"I love her so well, Mr. Gale, that nothing you can say will affect me. I—I hesitated at first about asking her to be my wife, because—you'll appreciate the unusual—well, her unusual history. You see, I come from a country where mixed blood is about the only thing that can't be lived down or overlooked, and I've been raised with notions of family honor and pride of race and birth, and so forth, that might seem preposterous and absurd to you."

"But a heap of conceits like that have been bred into me from generations back; they run in the blood of every old family in my country, and so, I'm ashamed to say, I hesitated and tried to reason myself into giving her up, but I've had my eyes opened, and I see how little those things amount to, after all. I'm going to marry Necia, Mr. Gale. I'd like to do it the day after to-morrow, Sunday, but she isn't of age yet, and if you object, we'll have to wait until November, when she turns eighteen. We'd both like your consent, of course; I'd be sorry to marry her without it; but if you refuse, we'll be forced to displease you."

To Be Continued in To-morrow's Boston Sunday American.

FLOWERS FOR MAINE HEROES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Pilgrimage to Arlington Cemetery and special memorial meetings at St. Patrick's and the First Presbyterian churches will, on Monday, commemorate the eleventh anniversary of the sinking of the Maine in Havana harbor.

All the patriotic military organizations of the District of Columbia will participate and a detachment of the regulars at Fort Myer will attend the services at the cemetery, where the Maine monument will be wreathed with flowers.

President Roosevelt will send a floral offering, and other wreaths will be furnished by the National Woman's Relief Corps, the Admiral Dewey Camp of the United Spanish War Veterans and the Phil Sheridan Relief Corps. A band from Fort Myer will play the dirges and a bugler will sound "taps."

In the evening, at the Presbyterian Church exercises, Admiral Sigsbee, who commanded the Maine on the night of the disaster, will tell the story of the tragic occurrence.

ACCUSED SLAYER OF WOMAN DEPORTED

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Oscar Slater, extradited to Glasgow, Scotland, charged with killing Marian Gilchrist, an eighty-two-year-old spinster in that city, sailed to-day on the Anchor Line steamer Columbia, with Criminal Sheriff Warnock and Inspector Pyper of the Glasgow police. Slater's wife was deported Wednesday. Slater said he could prove his innocence.

The Secrets of Success, Told by the Successful

Maxims of William G. McAdoo, Builder of the Hudson Tunnel

By ANGELA MORGAN

EIGHT years ago an unknown young Tennessee lawyer came to New York to make his living. He had initiative, brains, imagination and the daring to attempt big things.

It was not long before an idea developed in that wide awake, energetic mind of his. It was a mammoth idea—a crazy idea it seemed to many. But the plucky possessor of it didn't care a rap what others thought. He had the positive vision of all seers and dreamers, and he knew that his seemingly wild fancy would yet crystallize into a solid, material thing.

The young Tennesseean was William G. McAdoo. His big idea came to him on the day that he went over to Jersey City and saw the section of tunnel which was begun thirty-five years ago by an Englishman, Colonel Haskins, and abandoned after millions of dollars had been sunk in the scheme.

Undaunted by Past Failure

The fact that the project had proved a failure—the tunnel finally caving in and killing twenty-one workmen—and that capitalists had shied clear of the plan ever since, did not in the least discourage the ardent young dreamer.

"This is a great thing, and I'm going to make a success of it," he said.

It so happened that this particular genius was not only a dreamer, but a doer. The flame of his idea fired not only his imagination, but all his faculties.

Possessed of that rare gift, the power to convince others, he set forth to secure the might of millions to back his enterprise. And he did it.

To-day the Hudson tunnels, binding Manhattan and the mainlands, stand as a triumphant tribute to the pluck, the enterprise and the marvellous executive ability of the young Southerner.

Here is Mr. McAdoo's definition of the secret that brings success:

"I have heard many rules for success. Nearly everybody can tell you one. I have a very simple prescription, and it is this: No matter what situation in life you may occupy, no matter how humble it is, make it your rule to do the work better than any one ever did it before.

Excel, Even in Little Things

"I do not care how insignificant the part, if you have the spirit and the ambition and do your duty better than anybody else ever did it, the time will come when your superior will notice the fact, and when he wants some one for a more responsible position he will pick the man who has exhibited these qualities.

"There is a thing which the French call 'esprit du corps'—a spirit of common devotedness, of common sympathy or support among all the members of an association or body. It means comradeship and a common pride in the general work in which we are engaged and in each other."

The man or woman, says Mr. McAdoo, who has this spirit of common devotedness, of absolute loyalty to his or her work for the sake of the common good, and who never slights any task, however insignificant, is bound to make a success of life.

I saw the genius of the Hudson tunnels for a brief moment or two in his office at No. 30 Church street. I don't believe there is a busier man in New York than Mr. McAdoo. But he snatched time for a little chat, while pressing engagements waited, and gave me these rules for success, just as I have quoted them to you.

Don't Grow World-Weary

The Proper Sphere of the Young Is With the Young

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MY girls, do you know that many of you are just little wide-eyed children, gazing wistfully into the great world and "longing for something better than you have known?"

Back in your sweet young hearts lie dreams of love. You dream of Prince Charming, but you do not wait for him. You are in such haste to see that great wondrous thing called life, that you stretch out eager hands to some man who offers to show you life, but for whom you have no love.

You are only a simply bred, inexperienced little girl—a country girl, perhaps—and you marry a man of the world, a man quite out of your class.

For a while everything is gay and delightful, and you clap your hands joyously and exclaim, "This is real life! At last, I am really living! I was born for this gayety."

But after a time you learn that the man of the world has other interests in life besides his wife's welfare and happiness, and you learn the saddest lesson a woman has to learn—that of desertion and disillusionment.

You are just a crushed, dropping flower that, transplanted from its natural surrounding, blooms for a time in a false atmosphere and then droops and withers.

Marry in your own class. Don't marry a man because he can give you a good time, but because he can be a good husband and give you a good home.

Do not spend your time in vain longings, but in fitting yourself to be a good wife.

And remember this: That while no doubt you are perfectly fitted to be a sweet, charming wife to some earnest, industrious young man in your own walk in life, you would be quite out of your natural element as the wife of some blase, cynical man of the world.

Dream your day dreams, but dream of love, not of worldly success. Dream of a Prince Charming who is young, with all of life's enthusiasm before him, not of one who is old and tired and disillusioned.

Your proper sphere is with the young, not with the world-weary, unless you would grow world-weary yourself.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

A SERIOUS DRAWBACK

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Would you advise a young lady of twenty-five to keep company with a young man of twenty-one, or do you think me too old to go with a person of that age? I have known this young man for a number of years, but never kept company with him until of late, although he has taken me to a number of places of amusement.

His father has money, and he being the only child, has not worked very steady. His father told him he would start him in business this Spring, and help him along. This young man wishes me to marry him this Summer. His father told him if he would marry he would build him a home and furnish it. I suggested to him that we go together a few years longer before getting married, so he could save his money and see how his business would work out. He does not care to do this, as he says his people have plenty, and would help him as long as they lived, and, of course, after that he would inherit quite a sum of money.

I think a great deal of him, and feel that should I marry him, he would give me a better home than some men older. I have worked for my living since I was eighteen years old, and am now getting a fair salary.

E. M. B.

I DO not think the difference in your ages a very serious matter, though it would, of course, be better if he were your senior. But I cannot say that I think much of a man who is too lazy to work, and prefers to live on his parents. His parents being well to do is no excuse for his not working. I think it would be much better for him to work awhile before you marry, and would advise you to think it over very carefully before you give up your good salary to marry a man who won't work.

A MATTER OF LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-two and engaged to marry a young man of twenty-four. I have been engaged for the past three years. This young man is most estimable in every respect—does not drink, smokes very little, and, in fact, has no bad habits, and would make a very good husband. However, he is a young lawyer, graduated two years ago, and his practice is not very large. At the present outlook, I don't think we will be able to get married for two or three years.

Now there is another young man, a little older than the first, who also wants me to marry him. He is quite wealthy and can give me a very beautiful home and everything a girl could want.

What I want to know is this: I go to business every day and am getting tired of it. I have to work very hard, and think if I could give it up I would feel much better than I do. Once or twice I have asked the first young man to release me from my engagement, as I do not feel that I want to wait that long, so that I can go out with other young men. This he will not do, and says if I give him up it will ruin his life, that he will lose all interest in his practice and never marry.

Do you think I should wait for the first one (when it means a question of waiting so long), or should I give him up and marry the second young man?

PERPLEXED.

I THINK it is entirely a question of which man you care for most. Six years is a long time to be engaged, but if you really loved the man you would be willing to wait for him. I do not think you love him or you would not think of marrying the other man. Of course it will be hard on him if you break the engagement, after having been engaged three years, but not so hard as it would be if you married him, not loving him.

THE STENOGRAPHER

She Finds a New Recipe for Keeping a Husband

By DOROTHY DIX

"WELL," exclaimed the Stenographer, "the question of how to be happy though married has been settled at last."

"How is that?" inquired the Bookkeeper. "Who is the Solomon?"

"A St. Louis girl," replied the Stenographer. "She's boiled the whole formula for domestic bliss down into one little capsule that's just as sure to be an antidote for matrimonial misery as quinine is for malaria."

"How does she dope it out?" asked the Bookkeeper.

"This Missouri girl was going to be married the other day," returned the Stenographer, "and she insisted on dictating her own marriage service; and, in place of swearing to 'love, honor and obey' her husband, she took a vow to 'love, honor and humor' him.

"The substitution of that one little word 'humor' in place of 'obey' is the answer to the whole riddle of why marriage is a failure, and if generally adopted would nail up the doors of every divorce court in the land."

"For my part," responded the Bookkeeper, "I never could see why women would perjure themselves by swearing to 'obey' their husbands, when they never had the slightest intention of doing it. Nobody ever saw a woman doing it, even by accident."

One Long, Rosy Path of Bliss

"True, true," assented the Stenographer, "but think what a rosy path of bliss matrimony will be, when a man can start down it hand in hand with a gentle being who has taken a vow to humor him.

"You know what happens now when Mr. Benedict says candidly what he thinks of the coffee, and the steak, and the bread, at breakfast, when they are off par, and of the kind of a gold brick wife a woman is who doesn't know how to cook any better than that! Mrs. B. retorts with her opinion of a man who makes a god of his stomach and who tries to make a slave of his poor, persecuted wife.

"The family row ensues. But will when Mrs. B. has taken a vow to hum Mr. B.? Nay, verily! She will have he up before the dawn to concoct the dainti that he likes, and when he chides her f any little thing that has gone wrong, i stead of hurling back a hot answer, s will speak to him gently and ingratiatin as one does to a spoiled child.

Quite Too Good to Be True

"Suppose Mr. Benedict likes to stay of a night with the boys. When he ro in at 3 a. m. will he be met by Mrs. with a curtain lecture that will make h regret that he ever came home at all?

"Not under the new regime. Mrs. will recall that she has sworn at the altar to humor his little peculiarities, and so all she will say is, 'There, there, there, now; and did the bad old keyhole hide its naughty self so my darling couldn't find it? Don't you worry. Wifie will help you up the stairs, and will get you some nice cool ice, and pull off your shoes, and make you comfy.'

"Or suppose some pin-headed husband likes to swell around and play the oracle. As a general thing, he gets jolted good and hard by the wife of his bosom now, because she doesn't feel called upon to inflate his over swollen bump of self-esteem any more.

"It would be different, however, if she was under sacred obligations to humor him. Then it would be up to her to sit at his feet and work the punkah, and waft hot air in his direction all the time.

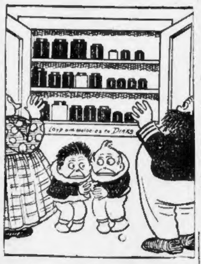
"You can bet your bottom dollar that you would never hear of a man who had that kind of a wife getting tired of her, or going side-stepping off after younger and fairer ladies. She'd have him cinched so that she couldn't lose him if she tried."

"That humoring the husband platform of matrimony makes a hit with me," said the Bookkeeper. "Any woman who is prepared to follow the noble example of the St. Louis maiden can have me for the asking."

"Don't you think that matrimony would be terribly monotonous if it had no fights in it?" inquired the Stenographer.

The wife that humors her husband will have a cinch. She can't lose him

Can You Run Down the Jam Robbers?



HANS and Fritz are suspects in a strong case of circumstantial evidence. Strange attacks on the jam cupboard inspired Mother Katzenjammer to try a little detective work.

She put up twenty-three jars of jam in jars of three sizes, and then carefully placed like quantities of jam on each of the three shelves. She and the Captain made an unexpected inspection and found that three of the jars were empty, as shown in the picture.

One of the smallest jars contains a pint of jam, from which clue Mrs. Katzenjammer challenges you to tell just how many pints disappeared.

One hundred prize puzzle books will be awarded among those who send the best answers to Puzzle Editor, in care of this paper. Some attempts at solution of Mrs. Katzenjammer's puzzle are as follows:

Dear Puzzle Editor—Two little mice must have eaten ten pints of Mrs. Katzenjammer's jam.

EDWARD E. COLLINS.

Dear Puzzle Editor—I should say that the large jars hold six pints and the medium four, which would make eleven pints of jam missing.

ETHEL CARPENTER.

Dear Puzzle Editor—Hans and Fritz have done a good day's work in disposing of eight pints of jam, and they will need no supper.

R. L. GREENBURG.

Dear Puzzle Editor—Mrs. Katzenjammer's 23 jars contained 40 quarts of jam, of which the robbers carried off 15 pints.

Pa Gives an Excuse; But Ma Says It Limps

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

THE picter on my slait to-day is a picter of my Ma & my Pa aggenn. This time my Ma is talking and my Pa is eeting his supper & lissening.

Pa dident cum hoam erly last nite, ether. Well, Ma sed, wat is the big excuse tonite. Slip me a good excuse this time, Ma sed, a plauzibel excuse, one (1) that doesent limp.

It shall be as you say, sed Pa. It was this way: I am one (1) of the comity on arrangements for the Poleesman's Ball, which is to be held on Washington's birthday. I picked out the date, sed Pa.

You did? sed Ma. Why dident you pick out sum other day? Washington nevver toald a lie, sed Ma, & it seems funny that a man like you wud pick out his birthday.

Be that as it may, sed Pa. I was appointed on that comity by Capting Conboy, & I had to do my duty, let the cost be what it may. I know you are my wife, sed Pa, & I reelize that I owe much to you & littel Bobbie, but wen Michael Josef Conboy asks me to do him a favor I must always be thare like a duck, Pa sed.

It Was a Stern Battel, Pa Sed

This Poleesman's Ball, Pa sed, of wich I have praktikally full charge, is to be one (1) of the eevents of the gay winter seeson. The poleesmen will all be thare, of course, with thare wives & sweethartz, & I expect to go with you, sed Pa.

I have gave much thought to the minor deetails of this grand affair, sed Pa, & if it haddent been for fixing up our program I wud have been hoam long beefoar this. It wes a stern battel between Duty & inclinashun, sed Pa, & Duty won.

I am glad you was on the job in regards to this wunderful ball, Ma sed. Now tell me sum of the minor deetails wich you fixed up wile acting on this comity. & everything you tell me, Ma sed, you better mark down on a peece of paper, beckaus in the morning I am going to cross examine you & I doant want to find any slips.

Well, sed Pa, first of all, the hall is to be draped with smilax & thare is going to be a Hungarian orkestry. I toald the other members of the comity that I knew a fellow wich owned a Hungarian orkestry & assured them that he wud bring the orkestry to play for the Poleesman's Ball.

Who is going to pay thare carfare? sed Ma.

That matter dident cum up, Pa sed, that will have to cum up at a later meeting.

In addishun to that, Pa sed, we are going to have Mister Caruso & Missus Tetryzeeny, both of wich will sing to us wile we are treding the lite, fantastik toe.

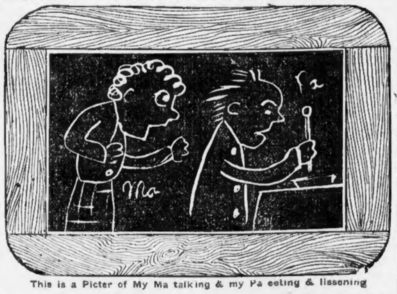
How about thare expenses & salary, sed Ma.

That deetail will also cum up at a other meeting of the comity, Pa sed.

Ah, Ma sed, now I know whare yure comity had its meeting. I doant like to be a detektiv all my life, Ma sed, but I know as well as I know anything that you & the rest of yure poleesman comity was talking this thing over in a plais whare the brass rail is far from waist high, sed Ma.

& anyhow, sed Ma, wat are you interesting yureself so much for? Wat have you got to do with the polees force, excep that you have been pinched twice (2) for trying to climb up the outside of a skyscraper?

Then Pa ate (8) his supper, wich was vary cold, & he dident say any moar about the Poleesman's Ball.



This is a Picter of My Ma talking & my Pa eeting & lissening

When Women Can't Work Any More

WE'RE very sad and lonely, and we're awfully afraid
Of what the future has for us in store,
Since we read about the day when they'll give us girls no pay,
And we'll not be self-supporting any more.
For Alfred Henry Lewis says a Senator told him
That women were a-spoilin' the whole show;
They're getting too much money; it's ceasing to be funny,
The way these suffragettes parade Park row.

MOST of us don't want to vote; we wouldn't if we could;
But just the same we'll share the coming doom.
"Just sweep them from the office," and into every crevice
Be sure you put the senatorial broom.
For if one little woman should be left to tell the tale,
She'd spoil the new millennium, and so—
When by order of the State all our jobs they confiscate—
I hope they'll tell us poor girls where to go.

WE can't get work as servants, for the Senator declares
That women their own houses must keep clean;
They must cook and wash and bake—do these all for man's dear sake—
And outside their four walls be rarely seen.
Those who go to matinee, or enjoy a game of bridge,
Must instantly cut out these vices twain
(I know I hadn't ought'er, but I'll spend another quarter
In seeing Harry Lauder once again.)

AND then I'll buy a Billikin and see what that will do,
For if Alfred Henry Lewis hasn't lied,
There's a time a-coming sure when we'll all be very poor,
Unless the men make something on the side.
When the daughters stay at home, and the sisters and the aunts,
The grandmas and the little brothers, too,
'Twill be pretty hard on 'Pop" when his one pay envelop
Must do what five or six pays used to do.

NOW when this time is coming we poor women do not know,
Till Alfred Henry Lewis tells us more
Of how and when they'll sweep us, and consequently heap us
Outside their office doors for evermore.
Oh, Billikin! Please help us! make these men of ours write books
That in the "six best sellers" will be found;
Or make them politicians, where under all conditions
They'll get a slice of what is going round!

ELOPING COUPLE ARE TURNED AWAY

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 13.—Another of the young eloping couples married in this city have failed to receive parental forgiveness. The luckless couple are Adolph Herzog, nineteen, and Emily Crowther, about the same age. They are from New Bedford, where he is a mill hand. They came here on Tuesday and were married by a Broadway clergyman. They went back to Adolph's home and asked for his father's blessing, but were turned away. The boy-husband is back in the mill, while his young wife is selling pie and cake in her father's bakeshop. They say they will fight it out on that line if it takes till Summer time.

INJUNCTION ON GAS COMPANY IN HAVERHILL

HAVERHILL, Feb. 13.—A temporary injunction was served on the Haverhill Gas Light Company to-day, preventing it from removing the company's gas metres from all city buildings.

The company had served notice on Mayor Edwin H. Moulton that the metres would be taken out at 10 a. m. and the gas service cut off unless the Mayor approved the company's gas bill at the rate of $1 net per thousand feet.

An order of notice accompanying the injunction sets a hearing for 9:30 a. m. Tuesday, when the company is to show why the injunction should not be made permanent.

Mayor Edwin H. Moulton recently refused to approve gas bills at the rate of $1.10 gross or $1 net for city lighting. Thursday night the company served notice that unless this rate was approved the metres would be removed from city buildings at 9:30 a. m. to-day.

Mayor Moulton had every city building wired for electric lighting. At the same time City Solicitor G. M. G. Nichols petitioned the Supreme Judicial Court for a temporary injunction restraining the company from taking out the metres.

Justice Henry N. Sheldon of the Supreme Court granted at Boston yesterday afternoon, a temporary injunction against the company. A transcript of this order was received to-day and served on General Manager Nevins of the Gas Company. Nevins said that they did not propose to oppose the courts, but that the metres would come out in the end. Mayor Moulton says: "Let them take the metres out if they can."

Quickening the Nation's Pulse

What the Country Needs Now Is Plenty of Exercise in the Open Air

The country is convalescing from a serious industrial and commercial distemper. Its recovery can be hastened.

What we need just now is exercise in the open air. The nation should take its coat off and go to work.

The way to give private enterprise a stimulus is to undertake a rousing public enterprise.

The way to liven trade, break the bread-line and set all the wheels whirling is to boldly set our hands, as a united people, to the interesting task of improving our real estate.

We own a slumbering empire—let us seize upon its dreams and MAKE THEM REAL.

THESE ARE THE DAYS FOR THE WATERING OF OUR DESERTS AND THE DRAINING OF OUR SWAMPS.

The other day, at Washington, Secretary Straus, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, held a conference with labor leaders and delegates from the convention of unemployed people that met two weeks ago at St. Louis. It is hoped that some large federal enterprise may spring from this conference to absorb the surplus labor of the country.

The bread-lines in the great cities are not merely a sign of the despair or discomfort of those who walk in them. They spread a contagion of doubt and distrust. The trail of the bread-line is over the whole land. The existence of masses of misery in the body of society dampens everybody's spirits, depresses credit and defeats business projects.

It is too late in the new day of economic light to say that the millions of dislocated and unemployed people are merely bearing the penalty of their private faults.

The phenomenon of disemployment presented in every European city (note, for example, what happened in Berlin recently), as well as in the United States, is not a private matter. It is public, and requires PUBLIC TREATMENT. It is symptomatic of a social debility that demands a social tonic.

Nations are recuperated by great enterprises. America has kept its youth and spring from generation to generation, because each generation has girded itself to some mighty physical task.

Through successive pulsations of adventure Americans have conquered new kingdoms of nature—beyond the Appalachians, the great rivers and the Cordilleras.

It would seem that the particular earth-wrestle that is appointed to put new life into us in these days is the redemption of the vast territories of perennial drought and flood.

The problem of the unemployed, with all its kindred perplexities, is not to be solved by cunning palliative devices. What is needed is a fresh mobilization of the WORKING FORCES of the nation.

The signal success of the reclamation service points the way of the next grand impulse of the national life. It is large and inspiring, but it is only a beginning.

"Irrigation," said Mr. Hearst at the Albuquerque congress last October, "is not, as some suppose, a makeshift economy; it is an intelligent development of the most valuable and productive lands on the American continent."

The Hearst newspapers have always been in the vanguard of national irrigation enterprise.

WE URGE NOW THAT THE SCOPE OF THE RECLAMATION SERVICE BE EXTENDED IN SUCH MANNER AS TO GIVE AN IMMEDIATE AND POWERFUL IMPETUS TO THE BUSINESS LIFE OF THE COUNTRY.

If an act of Congress is necessary in order to give the Reclamation Service greater freedom of action in its contact with the interests of private landholders, we recommend the passage of such an act. And if it is necessary to invoke the aid of capital beyond that now yielded by the sale of public lands, we suggest the bonding of new irrigation works under guaranty of the government. Whatever fiscal measures may be necessary to QUICK ACTION on a LARGE SCALE should be taken without haggling or hair-splitting.

If the forward movement in irrigation shall be accompanied by the passage of the Flint bill, or some similar measure, looking to the establishment of a great national service for the draining of swamp lands we may hope and expect that all sectional jealousy between the East and the West will be cancelled—and the country will move in solid phalanx.

For a long generation the highly efficient labors of the United States Geological Survey—as initiated by its long-sighted director, Major Powell, and carried on by his successors—have been preparing the scientific basis for a sweeping conquest of arid and submerged America.

With the establishment of the Reclamation Service in 1902 we began the training of a "skeleton" army for the grand assault—and the elaboration of a successful tactic.

We have now only to pocket our plans, fill up our ranks and MOVE OUR FORCES TO THE FRONTIER.

"In the wake of this army of peace and plenty no wounded will writhe, no stricken mourn."

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

HOW ABOUT THIS?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Must the United States government keep strictly to the eight-hour law or is it allowed to work its clerks and draughtsmen eight and one-half and nine hours a day as they have been doing for the past week? "H. E. R."

Boston.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH BOSTON?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Would like to inquire what is the matter with Massachusetts, Boston in particular, that her citizens don't wake up enough to demand the initiative, the referendum and the recall? Little Switzerland has had these aids to good government for years, and their use has only proved their value. Are the citizens all dead over here in Boston?

Also I want to know if the people of the United States are going to allow the Senate and Congress to pass a bill to pension ex-Presidents? Has our country so much money that we have to pension everyone who has had a political job in order to dispose of it? If not, it is about time the people woke up and cut these steals out! also the bill to increase the President's salary! If there are any live ones I would like to hear from them along these lines.

"READER."

South Boston.

WHY DON'T WE WAKE UP?

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Am glad to see that you have taken up the cudgel in favor of a referendum on the proposed new charter for the city of Boston. There is too much State rule already. Why should Boston be selected of all the cities in Massachusetts to be robbed of most of her rights of home rule? Are we not capable of deciding what we want without having questions of vital interest to the city of Boston decided by men from the backwoods and the Berkshires? Its an outrage. Why doesn't Boston wake up and demand her rights?

Boston. PATRIOT.

NEVER AGAIN

I WANT YOU TO LOOK UP MY ANCESTRY AND SEE WHAT KIND OF FAMILY TREE I'VE GOT YOUR GRAND FATHER WAS COL. BINK. HE WAS ARRESTED FOR SELLING RUM TO THE INDIANS
YOUR GREAT GRAND FATHER CAME OVER IN THE MAYFLOWER BUT THEY SENT HIM BACK ON THE NEXT SHIP
YOUR GREAT GREAT GRAND FATHER WAS IN CROMWELLS ARMY. BUT HE DESERTED
AND HIS FATHER MADE A LOT OF MONEY BUT THEY CAUGHT HIM AT IT
AND HIS FATHER WAS HANGED FOR STEALING SHEEP
NOW, SHALL I LOOK UP YOUR ANCESTRY ON YOUR MOTHERS SIDE?
NEVER AGAIN!

A Race That Is Advancing

The Negroes of Jamaica Are Showing Remarkable Progress

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1909, by American-Journal-Examiner

It is an evidence of a certain crudity of mind to judge a country or a race by superficial and casual observations.

We can not form a correct impression of the mental status of Italy by talking with street laborers or fruit venders; and the emigrants from Norway and Sweden do not indicate the intellect and art which have given those countries a place in history, any more than the Chinese laundryman suggests the greatness of China.

I heard tourists in Jamaica, after one day here, express disappointment with the intellectual progress of the African race.

They judged the people by a simple-minded chambermaid who had been, perhaps, a month from her mountain home, or by a bell boy or table waiter, or street vender of native beads.

But these are not representative types of the colored inhabitants of Jamaica.

Schools Show Progress Best

A visit to the graded school of Port Antonio, under the skilled direction of Mr. Plant, offers a better idea of what the race is doing in the way of progress.

Mr. Plant is a colored man of marked ability, education and refinement. He loves his work as a sculptor loves his art. His idea in teaching is that of taking the crude human clay and modeling a thinking, self-reliant, self-respecting citizen out of it in a few years.

There are 500 pupils in this school. Among the assistant teachers there are several who seem to be of pure African blood—with no admixture of white blood.

It has been claimed that all the intellectuality in the colored race can be traced to white blood—the whiter the brighter, the darker the duller. But investigation of the educated black and colored people does not fully justify that claim.

Perhaps the greatest examples of intellectual development—men like Booker Washington and Mr. Plant—are obliged to give credit to white ancestry for their exceptional powers as well as for their refined features; but in Jamaica many very black men may be found who would be a credit to any community.

The negroes of Jamaica have been free since 1838. Considering the limited opportunities given them for education, their progress has been remarkable. They occupy positions of trust in the government employ and in all the trades and professions are prominent.

It is a misfortune for Jamaica that such a man as Mr. Plant is not given the means to carry out his highest and largest ideals of education for his people.

The manual training department of his school is most interesting, and the skill of the pupils in this work is quite remarkable.

One persistent and universal fault with the colored race is prominent here as in the States. This is the deplorable lack of pride shown in the matter of their homes. Rare indeed is it to see a place of residence which indicates order, cleanliness and taste in the occupants.

There seems to be an inherent fear of the night air born in the colored people. They shut their windows and doors as tightly as the tombs of the dead! And in one small domicile ten people of all ages will sleep with no orifice through which a breeze can enter.

Still Show Lack of Enterprise

The village of Port Antonio shows a lamentable lack of enterprise on the part of its inhabitants. The buildings, with a few exceptions, are squalid and tumble-down structures, unattractive in the extreme. Situated as it is in the heart of Nature's paradise, surrounded with beauty of mountain, sea and tropical verdure that is fairly overwhelming in its magnificence, it is a pity that the residents do not combine in one supreme effort to make their town attractive.

But the people are poor, the climate is tropical, and ambition is lacking.

The older inhabitants are satisfied to go along as they always have gone—existing.

The younger generation has its face set toward the States—like all the rest of the world.

So despite the splendid efforts of Mr. Plant, the village of Port Antonio does not reap the benefit. But the race of colored people is relieving it; and the race is progressing.

Celebration of Divorce

By Wex Jones

Now that society has set the fashion of merry little dinners and dances to celebrate the achievement of a divorce, we may expect this custom to become general. And, of course, with the rejoicings centring around divorces, weddings will gradually become tearful and sombre affairs.

"Why are you wearing mourning, my dear?"

"Oo—boo-hoo, I was m-married today."

"Poor dear! But cheer up, you may be able to get your divorce earlier than you expect."

Such will be the tone of future conversations on this topic. Gloomy music will take the place of wedding marches and doleful hymns will replace the comparatively cheerful ones now in use. The bridesmaids will be chosen for their weeping qualities, and the best man will lead the sobs.

However, no gayety will be lost to the world, as all the sadness of the weddings will be offset by the exuberant rejoicings at divorces.

It can be arranged, probably, to have the Judge render the decree with joyous chuckles, and an orchestra can greet the happy divorcee with frivolous music as she steps lightly out of the courtroom.

Even the children, in the coming time, will read sentimental fairy tales which will end according to custom, "And so they were divorced and lived happy ever after."
